More than 700 attend
Central Baptist sanctuary dedicated

An estimated 700 persons poured into the new sanctuary of Central Baptist Church in Tyndall Sunday. The central feature of the dedication service was the dedication of the new building. Vice President of the church, Dr. G. W. W. Eilenson, directed the service.

The sanctuary was dedicated by Bishop W. J. Baker, Charleston, S.C., and the sermon was delivered by Dr. W. J. Baker, Charleston, S.C.

The church has been in existence for 67 years, and the new sanctuary was built at a cost of $250,000. The building is 120 by 160 feet in size and can accommodate 1,200 persons.

Two organists played during the service, and the choir sang several songs.

50 years of dependency: State leans too much on oil, gas

By Ennis Bartels

This is a 50-year-old dependency that needs to be addressed. Our economy is still heavily dependent on oil and gas. We need to diversify our economy and reduce our reliance on these commodities. This is crucial for the long-term sustainability of our economy.

Wind energy is a potential solution to this dependency. Texas has vast wind resources, and we need to harness this energy to reduce our reliance on oil and gas.

The current energy policies are not sustainable. We need to transition to renewable energy sources and reduce our carbon footprint. This is necessary for the future of our economy and the environment.

Diversification of our economy is crucial. We need to develop industries that are not dependent on oil and gas. This will ensure a stable and sustainable economy for future generations.

Deworming profitable for cattle producers

By Herb O. Currie

Deworming is done for many good reasons, but most farmers probably wouldn't list profit among the reasons. Yet, several studies have shown that it can be a way to increase the productivity of cattle and make more money.

Deworming helps control the spread of parasites, which can cause a variety of health problems in cattle. It can also help improve the quality of the meat and milk produced by the cattle.

A recent study showed that deworming can increase milk production by up to 15 percent. Another study found that it can increase meat production by up to 10 percent.

Deworming is not a replacement for good management practices, such as proper nutrition and shelter, but it can be a valuable tool in the overall management of cattle.

There are several dewormers available, and farmers should consult with their veterinarian to determine the best choice for their cattle.

Deworming can be an important part of any cattle management program. It can help improve the health and productivity of cattle, and it can be a way to increase profits.
