Our growth industry

America's small business owners - 12 million strong and still growing - are often overlooked in discussions about our economy. Yet these businesses are the backbone of our economy, providing millions of jobs and accounting for about one-third of the country's economic output.

Many of these small businesses are owned by women, who have a strong track record of success. According to a report by the National Women's Business Council, women-owned businesses have been growing faster than the overall economy and are more likely to hire and retain employees.

On this International Women's Day, let's celebrate the successes of these women entrepreneurs and support their continued growth. By doing so, we can strengthen our economy and create a more equitable society.

Letters to the editor:

Law officers encouraged

Dear Editor,

I write to the law officers of Ponder County and ask you to look into the problem.

Some schools, by example, are so far ahead in mental and emotional education that the students who graduate are better prepared for life than those who graduate from other schools. But the schools that are not so far ahead in these matters are not doing for their students what the schools that are so far ahead are doing.

Sincerely,

Doctor praises mentors

Editor's Note: The following letter was submitted to us by Dr. G. Munroe, president of A&M. Universities, who expresses appreciation for the work of mentors who have helped him in his career.

Many mentors have played important roles in the lives of medical professionals, including myself. They have given me guidance and advice throughout my career. I want to express my gratitude to them.

Employee sickness can be employer liability

Dear Commissioner Haber:

Can I get someone in your office to discuss the issue of employee illness and the potential liability for employers?

Best regards,

[Name]

Dear Commissioner Haber:

I am writing to discuss the issue of employee illness and the potential liability for employers. I believe that there are several factors that contribute to the high cost of healthcare, including the increasing number of employees who are ill.

Sincerely,

CISD signs contract

281 teachers receive training, guides, materials

The Curriculum Improvement School District (CISD) has signed the training contract with the Texas Education Agency to provide professional development for teachers. This move is part of the district's ongoing effort to improve educational outcomes for its students.

The contract includes a variety of training opportunities, ranging from classroom management techniques to the latest pedagogical research. Teachers will benefit from these sessions, which are designed to enhance their teaching skills and improve student learning.

The district has identified areas for improvement, such as increasing student engagement and providing a more inclusive learning environment. The training programs will address these challenges and help teachers implement effective strategies in their classrooms.

Additionally, teachers will receive instructional materials to support their teaching efforts. These resources include lesson plans, assessments, and other tools that will aid in delivering high-quality instruction.

The district is committed to ensuring that all teachers have the necessary tools and support to succeed. This contract is a significant step in that direction, and the district is confident that it will lead to improved student outcomes.

School paraprofessionals week proclaimed May 4-11

In recognition of the critical role paraprofessionals play in supporting education, May 4-11 has been designated School Paraprofessionals Week. This week provides an opportunity to acknowledge and celebrate the important work these professionals do.

Paraprofessionals support teachers and students in various capacities, from assisting with classroom instruction to providing individualized support. Their contributions are vital to the success of students, especially those with special needs or who require extra support.

During School Paraprofessionals Week, schools and districts will highlight the contributions of these professionals through various activities and events. This recognition serves as a reminder of the important role paraprofessionals play in ensuring all students have access to a quality education.

This week is an opportunity to thank paraprofessionals for their dedicated service and to highlight their essential role in the education system. It is a time to acknowledge their contributions and express gratitude for their unwavering commitment to the success of every student.

The district encourages all stakeholders to join in recognizing the efforts of paraprofessionals during this week-long celebration. Through collective efforts, we can ensure that every student receives the support they need to excel.

Carthage High School's football stadium has recently undergone renovations to improve the drainage system. The improvements were made necessary due to a lack of proper drainage. The stadium now has better ground drainage and will allow for more rain so the students can build a new playground in the near future. It's also expected to reduce the time the school has to mow the field. The stadium is now ready for the football season.
