Chapel Hill has two threats

Stopping Walker just half the job

If you're a fan of Chapel Hill basketball, you're no doubt aware of the threat posed by Gary Walker. The Panthers' senior wing has been a force on the court all season, and his scoring ability has been a key factor in the team's success.

Gary Walker has been identified as a key player in Chapel Hill's high-pressure defense. His ability to apply pressure and disrupt opposing offenses has been a major factor in the team's success.

However, Chapel Hill faces another threat in the form of an upcoming game against a tough conference opponent. The Panthers' next game is against a team that has a strong reputation in the conference.

The Panthers have been preparing for this game and are ready to face the challenge. Gary Walker and his teammates are focused on putting in a strong performance.

"Gary has been our go-to player this season," said Coach Johnson. "He has a great understanding of the game and is able to make plays for himself and his teammates.

"We need him to continue to perform at a high level, and he will be key in our success.

"But we also need to be aware of the other threats we face in this game. We need to be ready for anything that comes our way.

"Gary is a leader on the court and will help guide us through this tough game."

Carthage will have the last home game at the end of the season, and Chapel Hill will have the last home game.

"Chapel Hill has got a real good shot at the title," said one Carthage coach. "If we're going to break up the tie, we're going to have to win at Chapel Hill. Chapel Hill has got a good team, but they haven't been as good as they were last year. If we can beat Chapel Hill, we'll be in good shape."

"Chapel Hill has got a good team," said another Carthage coach. "They're a good team, but they haven't been as good as they were last year. If we can beat Chapel Hill, we'll be in good shape."

Defense needs shoring up to snap streak

Jvs' offense praised

Meanwhile, the defense has been let down in recent games, and both Carthage and Altus coaches have been focusing on shoring up the defense. English yule being hand crafted in Carthage

By Dorothy Nichols

The English yule tradition is a term that describes various practices and customs associated with the celebration of Christmas in English-speaking countries. This tradition emphasizes the importance of family, community, and the natural world. One of the most popular English yule customs is the making of handmade crafts and decorations. These crafts can range from simple paper chains to intricate wooden figures. The handmade yule items are often used as decorations in homes, churches, and public spaces to create a festive atmosphere. They are also given as gifts to friends and family members.

The handmade yule crafts are often inspired by traditional English folklore and crafts. Some popular yule crafts include making wreaths, hanging stockings, and creating Advent calendars. These crafts are typically made from natural materials such as pinecones, fir branches, and berries. They are often decorated with ribbons, candles, and other small ornaments.

One of the most iconic yule crafts is the paper chain, which is made by cutting strips of paper into small segments and then linking them together to form a long chain. The chains are often decorated with glitter, paint, or other embellishments. The chains are then hung up on walls or doors as a symbol of the passing days until Christmas.

Another popular yule craft is the Advent calendar, which is a calendar used to count down the days until Christmas. The calendar consists of small pockets or doors that are opened each day, revealing a small gift or decoration.

These crafts are not only a way to celebrate Christmas, but they also serve as a way to bring people together and create a sense of community. The handmade yule crafts are often passed down from generation to generation, preserving traditions and creating a sense of continuity.

In Carthage, the tradition of making handmade yule crafts is alive and well. Local artists and artisans are creating beautiful yule decorations that are used in homes and public spaces throughout the city. The handmade yule crafts are often sold at local markets and shops, providing a way for artists to earn a living and for customers to support them.

In conclusion, the English yule tradition is a rich and diverse tradition that celebrates the festive season with handmade crafts and decorations. These crafts are not only a way to celebrate Christmas, but they also serve as a way to bring people together and create a sense of community. In Carthage, the tradition of making handmade yule crafts is alive and well, and it provides a unique way to celebrate the holiday season.
Fifty-Five descendants gather at Ramah

By Dr. Mel R. Hord

The descendants of John and Ann Elizabeth Hord gathered at the Ramah Branch of the Orthodox Union in Des Moines, Iowa, on Saturday, October 24, 1987, to celebrate the 125th anniversary of the family's Americanization.

The occasion was marked by a dinner and a program of speeches and music. Ann was the daughter of James Hord, the great-great-great-grandson of Rev. John Hord, the first American priest to be ordained in the United States.

Dr. Hord, a member of the Hord family, addressed the gathering and traced the history of the family from its Scottish origins to its Americanization.

The event was attended by family members, friends, and members of the Orthodox Union.

Jeanette says breadmaking not chore it used to be

Fall time for delicious breakfast breads

By Dorothy Vestal

Jeanette says breadmaking not chore it used to be, loaf or loaf, is now a joy. "I used to think breadmaking was a chore, but now it's fun," she said. "I love the smell of fresh bread in the house and the satisfaction of making something from scratch."

Jeanette has been making bread for many years, and she has learned some good tips to make the process easier. "I always use a good quality flour and yeast, and I make sure the dough is kneaded well," she said. "I also keep the kitchen warm, which helps the bread rise properly."

Jeanette's recipe for bread is a family favorite. "My mother used to make bread, and I learned from her," she said. "I use a recipe that's been in the family for generations, and it always turns out great."

Jeanette's favorite bread is a soft roll. "I love the texture of a soft roll, and it's perfect for breakfast," she said. "I also like to make a loaf of bread, which I can use for toast or sandwiches."

Jeanette's breadmaking has inspired others to try it themselves. "I've encouraged my friends and family to try breadmaking, and they've all enjoyed it," she said. "It's a fun and rewarding activity."
