Doctors phasing out deliveries

Pong to ponder obstetricians policy

Panco General Hospital officials are considering the possibility of phasing out deliveries at the hospital. This policy is being considered due to the hospital's financial situation and to reduce the hospital's workload. The hospital will likely make a decision in the near future, unless an outside organization offers to take on the responsibility. The decision has been made to contact another hospital to provide obstetric services to the panco area. The hospital will continue to provide other services, such as emergency care, surgery, and treatment of acute illnesses. The hospital administration has stated that they will make the decision based on the best interest of the patients and the hospital's long-term viability.

Twister shatters lives

Families left homeless

By Kevyn K. Fisher

Twister shatters lives

As the National Weather Service concluded its investigation of the twisters that ripped across northeast Texas on Saturday, April 18, the focus of the nation turned to the victims of the twisters. The storms left a path of destruction, leaving many families homeless and in need of assistance. The twisters were the result of a large-scale weather disturbance, with several storms moving across the region, causing widespread damage. The National Weather Service reported that the storms were the result of a strong low-pressure system, which moved across the region, causing several storms to develop. The storms were accompanied by heavy rain and strong winds, which caused widespread damage.

Save-the-jail organization gets going

A group of local citizens has formed an organization to save the jail in town. The group is called "Save the Jail," and it is made up of local citizens who are concerned about the future of the jail. The group has been formed in response to the possibility of the jail being closed, which would have a negative impact on the community. Supreme Court search becoming silly

By Alan Miller

So now the Supreme Court is vying for the attention of the American public. The Court has filed suit alleging that the president's actions are illegal. The president has accused the Court of being a kangaroo court.

In the words of Justice black, "I think we need a new president who can actually do something."

But anyone who doesn't want to be pushed around by a kangaroo court should consider voting for a different president next time around.

School board approves audit

The board members of the Caruthers Independent School District unanimously approved the budget for fiscal year 2023-2024 on May 10. The budget includes spending on educational programs, maintenance, and operations, totaling $68.4 million. The district's financial officer, Jerry Johnson, presented the budget to the board during the regular meeting, and the vote was unanimous. Johnson noted that the budget was developed with input from the community and aligns with the district's long-term goals. The budget includes funding for capital projects, technology upgrades, and instructional materials. The district's overall financial health is strong, with a carryover of $5.2 million from the previous fiscal year. The next budget meeting will be held in June to discuss the district's financial plans for the next fiscal year.

Being Baptist messenger two-way street

By Dorothy Dodson

A woman Baptist hearing a message at church on Sunday, can imagine what her hour of quietness and rest, might well be, just the same as the man of like faith. But I suppose, if he couldn’t find a church which suited his taste, his desires, and his wishes, he would be compelled to take the church of his choice, and just as much as we do.

The service at this church, is always very quiet, and is always over at the same time. The message is always very short, and the music is always very sweet. The people are always very kind, and the atmosphere is always very pleasant.
