Local establishment to offer more services

PGH joins hospital foundation

By John Coleman
Post News Editor

An alliance forged between the Board of Directors of PGH General Hospital and the East Texas Hospital Foundation in Tyler will strengthen the local hospital's ability to provide services needed in the community. That was the general agreement among the representatives of both organizations this week at a meeting held in Carthage to establish a new hospital foundation.

According to Carthage Chamber of Commerce Director and chief executive officer of the hospital, Mr. Adams, the hospital board voted at its Dec. 1 meeting to become a member of the foundation. Pat Adams, Director of Public Relations for ETHF, said Thursday evening's meeting was the first step in the establishment of the foundation.

A Foundation like this is needed with 10 to 15 hospitals in this area.

Cammack withdraws from race

Charles Cammack, Democratic candidate for the Texas House of Representatives, has announced his withdrawal from the race for the district because of a lack of financial resources.

A Cammack spokesman said the candidate has withdrawn from the race because of a lack of financial resources.

The withdrawal announcement comes after the candidate faced a challenge from a primary opponent in the Republican Party.

The withdrawal announcement comes after the candidate faced a challenge from a primary opponent in the Republican Party.

"I am sorry to announce my withdrawal from the race for the district because of a lack of financial resources," Cammack said in a statement.

"I want to thank all of you who supported me during this campaign. I regret that I was not able to make the necessary financial investment to continue this race. I hope that we can come together and work for the benefit of all the citizens of this district."

The Supreme Court's latest ruling on the issue of school prayer is another blow to an already weakening trend. We have to wonder if this is the end of the line for school prayer. In a 5-3 ruling on the case yesterday, the Court declared that the tradition of prayer in public schools is unconstitutional. This decision, if enforced, will certainly bring about a widespread shift in the way we perceive religion and education. The Court's ruling is an important step in the right direction, but it is not the final solution. We still have much work to do in order to ensure that schools remain neutral in matters of faith and instead focus on providing a truly inclusive education for all students.

Children pay when Dad doesn't

It's a sad reality that many parents fail to provide for their children's basic needs. The lack of support can have a significant impact on a child's mental and physical well-being. As a result, many children are left to fend for themselves, often leading to a cycle of poverty that is difficult to break.

Why is Hart back in?

It's been a mystery to many why former Mayor Don Hart is back in office. Some speculate that he's returning to fix the problems he left behind, while others believe he's coming back to seek revenge. Regardless of the reason, it's clear that Hart's return to City Hall will have a profound impact on the city's future.

Now that the holidays are over and everyone is back at work or school, perhaps you are wishing you had the New Year off to a good start.

Saturday, December 28th, and the end of our Christmas just passed. My two daughters, Sandra and Glenn, and their ages are about the same as the last time that I wrote. They were on the road, had a Cherry pie for dessert, and a coconut cake, that is, because they had made it. They say they are the best. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better.

For the love, Omi, that you are always there for us.

Now that all the holidays are over and everyone is back at work or school, perhaps you are wishing you had the New Year off to a good start.

Saturday, December 28th, and the end of our Christmas just passed. My two daughters, Sandra and Glenn, and their ages are about the same as the last time that I wrote. They were on the road, had a Cherry pie for dessert, and a coconut cake, that is, because they had made it. They say they are the best. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better. I make it and they say it is better.
