PJC to realign staff in top-level moves

By John Coleman

In the wake of the retirement plans announced by two Panola Junior College veteran administrators, the college's latest Promotion Monday agreed to a realignment of departmental duties on the administrative level.

Martin Darnall, the Dean of Admissions since 1962, and a member of the PJC staff since 1943, has announced that he will retire on August 1 of this year. W. Lamar Fuller, currently the Dean of Cooperative Education, has announced that he will retire on the last day of May. He has been associated with the college for about 25 years.

"With these two important staff members announcing their plans to retire, we see the need to make some realignment of roles that have already been used to staff these and related positions," PJC President Dr. Dave McDaniel said.

"This change, the realignment is coming to us. We are working with our staff to give them the best possible move into the future."

Support staff changes involving the various departments are currently being made.

Volunteers work long and hard for PGH

By Sandy Young

Volunteers make up a big part of the work at any hospital at Panola County General Hospital, the volunteer members of the Hospital Auxiliary. Each Monday through Friday help ease the burden on hospital staff.

In 1984, in addition to doing work, they are able to do for others, a need for a change in their role in the hospital was felt.

Volunteer Mary Lake, a resident of the hospital, was a leader in the volunteer program, said she felt that the other volunteers were on hand weekly from 9:12 a.m. to 5 p.m. "We help make life easier for the staff, and they help us, too," she said.

Volunteers have a wide range of duties at PGH. They take calls of the patient register, take incoming messages and answering admissions on a daily basis.

Volunteers aren't too strict to help get patients and staff members. They take coffee and other food, and make sure that the waiting room is quiet and provide conversation and should be the order of the day.

Commissions declare emergency

By John Colman

The Panola County Commission declared an emergency at Monday’s meeting after the death of Judge W. B. Martin and the return of Judge Mike Parker to the county. The commission’s decision comes after a month of meetings, including two special meetings, to discuss the matter.

The declaration allows the county to receive disaster relief funding and to take action to address the need to repair and replace the county’s water and sewer systems. The emergency also allows the county to issue bonds to fund the repairs needed to the water and sewer systems.

The commission’s approval of the declaration was unanimous, with all five commissioners voting in favor. The declaration was made after a month of meetings, including two special meetings, to discuss the matter.

The declaration allows the county to receive disaster relief funding and to take action to address the need to repair and replace the county’s water and sewer systems. The emergency also allows the county to issue bonds to fund the repairs needed to the water and sewer systems.

St. Valentine’s weekend offers sentimental entertainment

Hearts, flowers to theme Feb. 14

St. Valentine’s Day, the 14th of February, is a day observed by many as a celebration of love and affection. It is a time when people often express their feelings through cards, flowers, and gifts to those they care about.

The day is named after St. Valentine, a Christian martyr who is said to have performed many miracles during his time on earth. He is especially known for his work with the poor and sick, and for his ability to perform miracles.

St. Valentine’s Day is also a time when people often organize events and activities to celebrate love and relationships. In some places, there may be parades, festivals, or other events that are held specifically for the occasion.

In addition to the many events that are held on St. Valentine’s Day, there are also many traditional symbols that are associated with the day. Heart-shaped decorations, such as cards and ornaments, are a common sight on this day, as are flowers, especially red and pink roses.

Overall, St. Valentine’s Day is a time for people to come together and celebrate love and the connections that bring them closer together.

Tea room volunteer puts in long hours

By Dorothy Novita

Ouida Walker stopped an hour early on Saturday, downed her sandwich, and packed up. She left early because she had to be at church, but it won't be the last time she does it, she says. She's been packing up early for years.

Walker says that at the beginning of the year, she was very active in the tea room. "I used to love it," she recalls. "I used to be there every single day." But as the months went by, she found herself越来越少地去那里. "I don't go there as much as I used to," she admits. "I just don't have the time."

Walker has been volunteering at the tea room for over 20 years. "I've been here since the beginning," she says. "I was here when it was just a small room in the back of the building."

The tea room is located in the heart of downtown Greenville, South Carolina. It has been a community landmark for over 80 years. "It's been a part of the community for as long as I can remember," says Walker. "I remember coming here as a child."

Walker says that she enjoys volunteering because it keeps her busy and gives her a sense of purpose. "I like being able to help others," she says. "I like being able to give back to the community."

The tea room is open year-round and serves breakfast, lunch, and dinner. "We're open seven days a week," says Walker. "People come here to eat, but they also come here to socialize."

Walker says that she misses the people who used to come to the tea room. "I miss the old regulars," she says. "I miss the people who used to come here every day." She says that she hopes to see them again soon.

"I'll never forget the people who used to come here," says Walker. "I'll never forget the memories."
Book forum meets

Back Yard Forum met on January 25 at the home of Mrs. W. C. Smith, Mrs. Carolyn Bongen and Mrs. John B. Phipps assisted as hostesses. Mrs. Michael Spencer presided over a brief business meeting, when twenty-three members and one guest Mrs. Elton Rhinehart attended.

The program, following the theme of "Texas Woman," was presented by Mrs. J. R. H. Varner. The subject was "Le Carpentier." During her 60th birthday in 1911, Evangeline Agnew and Mrs. Bird Johnson's Press Publishing Museum. Mrs. Lea Carpentier's farm was taken from her by Mrs. Carpenter and "I'm Getting Better All the Time," Mrs. Carpenter was described as vivacious, a reader, the supporter of ERA, and a person for whom flying was her hobby because she loved the Wright brothers work. Mrs. Varner has resided around Galveston, where the house she lived in with her family was in Galveston, an old home. She is eight years old, and from there she moved to "Mississippi House" in Williamson in 1946. The old house was the White House where she served both the president and the first lady. She was a late White House wedding during her tenure with the Johnsons. Continuing in her career of government service, she was Assistant Secretary of Education during the term of President Kennedy.

After her husband died in 1978, she moved back to Texas, but the Washington Post was no longer a popular lecturer, and she turned to writing short stories with "two windows along the way." She is an energetic, witty, and always topsy-carpenter in her shoes, and recommends practice to others because it will keep you busier, better and brisker.

At the end of the program Kathryn Clark read a personal note which she had received from Mrs. Lea Carpenter in 1955 when she was Mrs. Johnson's press secretary. The meeting ended with sherry and coffee served.
