By Sandy Young

Local resident has filed a lawsuit against the Polk Junior College (PJC) administration, alleging that the construction of the new baseball field has violated local zoning laws and caused significant disruptions to the surrounding community.
Texas farmers to feel farm payment restrictions

Senator Lyle Boren said that he would like to see the federal government establish a new payment system for farmers. The system would have to be in place in order to avoid the possibility of paying farmers more than they are allowed to receive. Under the current system, farmers are allowed to receive up to $3,000 per year. Boren said that he would like to see the limit increased to $5,000. He also said that the program should be more flexible, allowing farmers to choose the crops they want to plant. Boren said that he would like to see the program expanded to include small and medium-sized farms. He said that the program should also include more support for research and development. Taxes—it's that time again

A good friend of mine always says that you should "never get too old to learn something new." For farmers, the tax season is no exception. Farmers need to be aware of the new tax laws and how they affect their business. The IRS has released a new publication, "Farmers' Tax Guide," which provides information on the new tax laws. Farmers should also check with their tax advisor to make sure they are taking advantage of all the deductions and credits available to them. Times are tough in the farm community, and farmers need to make sure they are getting the best tax advice possible.

Social Security

By Ray McDermott, Editor

Social Security Administration

Social Security is a social insurance program that provides benefits to eligible individuals. The program is funded through taxes on wages and salaries. Benefits are based on the individual's earnings history and the level of benefits is determined by the Social Security Administration. The program provides benefits for retired workers, workers who become disabled, and their surviving family members. The program also provides benefits for unemployed workers and their families. The Social Security Administration is responsible for administering the program.

"What are you doing here?" the policeman asked the woman.
"I'm looking for my husband," she replied.
"You shouldn't be out here, it's dark," the policeman said.
"I know," she said. "But he's lost and I'm worried about him." "I see," the policeman said. "Well, I'll help you look for him." The woman thanked him and they started to walk. They searched the woods for hours but they couldn't find her husband. Finally, just as the sun was starting to come up, they found him. He was lost in the woods but he was safe. The woman thanked the policeman again and they walked back to the car. "Thank you," she said. "You're a great policeman." "Just doing my job," the policeman said. They both laughed and drove away.

"Texas farmers to feel farm payment restrictions"
Beckville students feature fun

Fourteen Beckville students turned up for a fun Easter Egg hunt April 21. The group filled their baskets with eggs then went through the school's halls and gardens before returning to their respective classrooms to count their haul. The event was hosted by the Beckville Elementary School and sponsored by the Beckville PTA.

Admissions, dismissals

Student success at the Beckville High School is nothing new. The school has been consistently recognized for its academic excellence, earning national and state accolades for its consistently high graduation rates and strong performance on standardized tests. The school prides itself on providing a supportive and challenging environment for its students, offering a range of extracurricular activities to complement the academic curriculum. The success of the school can be attributed to the dedication of its faculty and staff, who work to ensure that every student receives the individual attention and guidance they need to achieve their full potential.

Egg hunt scheduled March 26

Pleasant and more than 100 children will fill the halls of the Olds Elementary School on March 26 for an exciting Easter Egg hunt. The event is open to all children in the community, and families are encouraged to participate. The hunt will take place at 1 p.m. sharp, and children are expected to be enthusiastic and energetic as they search for the hidden eggs. Parents are asked to watch their children closely and to ensure their safety throughout the event.

Beckville honor roll

Three Beckville Elementary School students named to the Honor Roll for the month of February: Anna专项斗争s, Michelle Purifoy, Jessica James, and Ben Huddleston. Two Beckville High School students have also made the honor roll: Ruby Smelser and Emily Green. These students demonstrate excellence in their academic endeavors, providing inspiration for their peers and setting a high standard of achievement.

City calls meeting

During a city council meeting, resident Sandra Smith presented the city with a request to renovate the city hall. The council agreed to consider the request, with plans to discuss further at the next meeting. This action is expected to improve the functionality and aesthetics of the city hall, enhancing the overall experience for residents and visitors.

It's a fact

The school has been consistently recognized for its academic excellence, earning national and state accolades for its consistently high graduation rates and strong performance on standardized tests. The school prides itself on providing a supportive and challenging environment for its students, offering a range of extracurricular activities to complement the academic curriculum. The success of the school can be attributed to the dedication of its faculty and staff, who work to ensure that every student receives the individual attention and guidance they need to achieve their full potential.

Mike Ward

State Representative

We began our months-long meeting and talking to the people of Panola County. It has been a great experience talking to many of you all and I've been talking to numerous people in the county. It's been a wonderful opportunity to learn about the issues that are important to our district. As I begin my term in office, I am focused on creating new jobs, improving education, and addressing the problems facing our state's small businesses and agriculture.

Veteran English professor optimistic

It's fast! It's Rock! It’s 408 W. College

People with a long history in the academics world are always expected to fight hard for the traditions of the past. Yet at the same time, these people are also expected to be flexible in order to adapt to new ideas. This is exactly what has been happening at the University of California, where English professors like myself are working hard to preserve the legacy of the past while also embracing the possibilities of the future. The result is a dynamic and exciting academic environment that is rich in tradition but also open to change.

Searches for Presence of War

The East Cape Branch, No. 26, G.A.R., has announced that its members will begin a search for the presence of War in the Peoria area during the Civil War period. The purpose of this search is to identify and honor local residents who served in the war.

Barbara Whitehouse and Molly Adams have been appointed to lead the search. They will be assisted by several other members of the branch.

The group will be using a variety of methods to locate the veterans, including genealogy records, local historical societies, and interviews with local residents.

"We want to make sure that we honor all of the local veterans who served in the Civil War," said Whitehouse. "They deserve recognition for their service and sacrifice."
