There’ll be fun, prizes and lots of eggs

Final plans are being made for the annual Great Easter Egg Hunt to be held Saturday, March 21st at 1 p.m. on the Carthage High School campus. All Panola County children ages 1-10 are invited.

Prices totaling more than $1,000 will be awarded to egg hunters finding the special plastic eggs containing eggs. More than 30,000 candy eggs are being hidden.

This year, a special area for toddlers will be set up at the hunt and will be open only to one and two year olds who are walking. The toddler area is the only area where adults will be allowed to accompany children. Toddlers, however, must pick up their own eggs.

Other age categories will be 3-5, 6-7 and 8-10. Children will need to bring an Easter basket or bag to keep their eggs.

The Easter Bunny and various costumed characters, as well as other participants, will be on hand to help the young hunters.

In case of rain, the Great Easter Egg Hunt will be held April 1st.

Sponsors for the event include: Carthage Newspapers and Wal-Mart are being given more than 90 area merchants in sponsoring the event.

For more information, call the Carthage Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Wheat to leave PJC nursing program with tradition of excellence

By Ricci Bawa

By Ricci Bawa

The death of Mrs. Wheat will leave a void in the nursing program at the Panola College of Nursing, but it will also leave an empty place in the hearts of her students and colleagues.

Mrs. Wheat has been a driving force behind the success of the program, which has produced some of the most successful nurses in the region. Her dedication to teaching and her commitment to her students have made her a beloved figure in the community.

"Mrs. Wheat was a true educator," said Dr. John Smith, president of Panola College. "She was not only an excellent teacher, but also a mentor and a role model. She will be greatly missed by all of us."

Mrs. Wheat was a nurse for over 30 years and had been teaching at Panola College for 14 years. She received her nursing degree from the University of Alabama and her master's degree in Nursing Education from Texas Women's University.

"She was a true professional," said Dr. Smith. "She always put her students first and went above and beyond to ensure that they received the best possible education."

Mrs. Wheat's dedication to her students and her profession was evident in her work. She was always available to her students, both in and out of the classroom, and was known for her passion for nursing and her ability to inspire her students.

"She was a true leader," said Dr. Smith. "She was always a role model for her students and asource of inspiration for all of us."

Mrs. Wheat is survived by her husband, John Wheat, and her two children, David and Jamie. She will be deeply missed by her family and friends. She is also survived by her two grandchildren, Thomas and Sarah.

How would it be for a movie plot?

Mr. D. A., meet your teen-age idol

Back in the 1960s, when Mr. D. A. met his teen-age idol, it was a moment that changed his life. He was a young man, just starting out in his career, and he was nervous about meeting the star of his dreams. But when he finally met Elvis, Mr. D. A.'s life changed forever.

Elvis was a legend in his own time, and Mr. D. A. was no exception. He had been a huge fan of Elvis since he was a young boy, and he was thrilled to meet him.

"I was so nervous," Mr. D. A. said. "But when I finally got up the courage to say hello, he was so nice to me. He even shook my hand!"

Elvis was just as kind and thoughtful as Mr. D. A. had hoped. He signed autographs for him and even took a picture with him. It was a moment that Mr. D. A. would never forget.

"I'll never forget the day I met Elvis," Mr. D. A. said. "He was so kind to me, and I'll always be grateful for that."

Elvis's impact on Mr. D. A. was profound. He inspired him to succeed, and he helped him get his life back on track.

"Elvis was a true inspiration to me," Mr. D. A. said. "He showed me that anything was possible if I worked hard enough."
How to minimize heart disease risk to be taught by County Agent Milstead

Sensible eating not necessarily boring

By Dorothy Halley

Thursday, March 19

How often do you eat a diet low in cholesterol and fat? Do you eat a lot of fruit and vegetables? Do you limit your salt intake?

These are some of the questions that County Agent Milstead will answer in his next series of educational programs. The purpose of the courses is to get the word out on the importance of nutrition and to help people make healthier choices in their diet.

In addition to the educational programs, Milstead will also be conducting several nutrition workshops, which will focus on specific areas such as weight management, diabetes, and heart disease prevention.

One of the main goals of the educational programs is to encourage people to make small changes in their daily lives that can have a big impact on their health. By making these changes, people can reduce their risk of developing heart disease, cancer, and other chronic illnesses.

One of the ways to start making these changes is to choose a diet that is low in saturated fat and cholesterol. This can be done by eating more fruits, vegetables, and whole grains, and by limiting the amount of red meat and processed foods in your diet.

Another important aspect of a healthy diet is to limit your intake of salt. This can be done by using other seasonings instead of salt, such as herbs and spices, and by reducing your intake of processed foods that are high in sodium.

In addition to these dietary changes, Milstead will also be teaching people how to make healthier choices when it comes to exercise. This includes learning about the benefits of regular physical activity, as well as tips for staying active and motivated.

Overall, the educational programs and workshops offered by County Agent Milstead are designed to help people make healthy lifestyle choices that can improve their overall health and reduce their risk of developing chronic diseases.
