To improve local budget
Cubans moved here from Florida prisons

By Sandy Young

Financial considerations were the determining factor in a contract between Panola County and the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service wherein the county will house Cuban refugees, according to Mike Parker, county judge and Larry Huddleston, county attorney.

Under the agreement, the INS will pay the county $120 per day for each refugee kept here. If the nine refugees who were transferred to the Panola County Detention Center from Sweatwater were here for one year, the county would stand to earn $184,200. Lieutenant John DePrese, jail administrator, said this aspect of having these nine in the county is a financial incentive for us.

Special Olympics to host locals

Fifteen athletes of the Panola County Special Olympics will be competing Saturday at the Area 7 Special Olympics Meet at the Abe Martin Stadium in Lufkin. One to two hundred people will be in attendance and the Panola County team will lead the procession into the stadium during the opening ceremonies beginning at 3 p.m.

Local athletes will be among more than 600 mentally retarded athletes of 18 Texas counties to compete in the track and field games. Countless athletesumbling across the finish line, winning gold medals and trophies, including those who came from the county, will be of interest to spectators, viewers and athletes.

The program focuses on athletes who have learned and seen active involvement of the Sportz Parents and wants every member to solve problems that lead to success in sports.

Shriners will hit streets in annual hospital drive

Shriners will hit the streets Saturday in the unlithe gale of paper "flakes," to raise funds for children's hospitals sponsored by the fraternity order. The Shriners, recognizable by their aprons and hats, will be seeking donations for the hospitals and distributing an informational table describing the Shrine hospital system and the patients who benefit. Patients presently in care of several children from Panola County, said John Howard, president of the Panola County Shriners organization.

"We're doing our best to help these young crippled children and their families," said Howard. "It takes money to run these hospitals and give the help and love and support of the community that makes the program work."

Absentee voting continues

Absentee voting continues through next Monday, April 5. The county began Monday, April 4, and will conclude on Friday, April 8, according to Sherrill Conner, Panola County Registrar of Voters. Voters wishing to cast their ballots at the courthouse may do so between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Late Tuesday evening, 37 persons had voted absentee at the courthouse and Conner's office had received requests for 278 mail-in ballots.

People who vote in person do not have to give a reason for voting.

Carthage native drops into Honduras

Matthew, Kim and Teresa Shoffner welcome Lt. Shoffner back

All I could tell my wife was to 'just watch the news'

By Sandy Young

When American troops were deployed to Honduras last month, the Shoffners were right in the middle of the situation in the area. The Shoffners were the son and daughter of First Lieutenant Bob Shoffner.

Shoffner, a 1981 graduate of Carthage High School, was among the 729 personnel who were deployed to Honduras. This was a large number of personnel from Carthage. This month was quite exciting about their sending to Honduras, but the officers were not allowed to go to Honduras.

That was the reason that the practice exercises, they knew they were headed to Honduras, but they were not told where. When he went to pick up his son, Shoffner said he could tell his wife Kim that he was going to Honduras. He also said that the family that he would be with was set to go to Honduras.

Kim, he said, the man they were headed for the soldiers, were expecting a baby in September. They were interested in taking care of a baby's needs.

By 5 p.m., he said, the man they were headed towards Honduras experienced an attack by a sandstorm. This was the reason why they were unable to move forward and to get ready.

But, according to Lt. Shoffner, the Sandstorm had began moving slow after they began U.S. troops were on the way. He said he was impressed with how quickly the U.S. responded to the situation in Honduras. He said that the Sandstorm was a big challenge for them. Cancer society prepares for residential fund drive

The news of April 30 has been hard for the African American Cancer Society for a residential fund drive. The society is preparing to launch a campaign to raise money for cancer research. The society's director, Dr. William Jones, said the campaign will focus on raising funds for cancer research.

"The cancer rates are going up and we're seeing more young people getting diagnosed with the disease," Jones said. "We need to do something about this and we're doing our part to help raise awareness and funds for cancer research."

Caring for mares and their foals

By Sherry H. Coveney

When a mare is about to foal, it is a lovely time for anyone fortunate enough to be able to observe it. Mares and their foals are beautiful creatures, and watching them interact is a joy. However, it is important to note that there are certain things that need to be done in order to ensure the health and well-being of the foal.

One of the most important things that need to be done is to ensure that the foal is born standing up. This is because standing is necessary for the foal to breathe properly. If the foal is born lying down, it may be difficult for it to get enough oxygen. In order to ensure that the foal is born standing up, the mare needs to be in the right position. This can be achieved by ensuring that the mare is in a comfortable area and that she is not in pain.

In addition to this, it is important to ensure that the foal is born with its mother's milk. This is because milk is necessary for the foal's growth and development. The mare's milk should be available as soon as possible after the foal is born. This can be achieved by ensuring that the mare is in a comfortable area and that she is not in pain. If the mare is in pain, it may be difficult for her to produce milk. In this case, it may be necessary to help the mare to produce milk.

Another important thing that needs to be done is to ensure that the foal is healthy. This can be achieved by ensuring that the foal is not exposed to any harmful substances. For example, the foal should not be exposed to chemicals that can be harmful to its health.

Finally, it is important to ensure that the foal is able to interact with its mother. This is because interaction with the mother is necessary for the foal to learn about its environment. In order to ensure that the foal is able to interact with its mother, the mare needs to be in a comfortable area and that she is not in pain. If the mare is in pain, it may be difficult for her to interact with her foal.

In conclusion, caring for mares and their foals is a beautiful process that requires careful attention. By following the tips outlined above, it is possible to ensure the health and well-being of both the mare and her foal.

County signs proclamation for Child Abuse Awareness

By Richard S. Young

The county has signed a proclamation declaring April as Child Abuse Awareness Month, which is a time to raise awareness about the issue and support survivors. The proclamation is signed by the county executive and other elected officials.

The proclamation states that child abuse can take many forms, including physical, sexual, emotional, and neglect. It also notes that child abuse can have lifelong effects on survivors and can lead to a number of negative outcomes, including mental health problems, substance abuse, and criminal behavior.

The proclamation encourages the community to take action to prevent child abuse and to support survivors. It recommends that individuals take steps to educate themselves about child abuse, to report suspected abuse to the appropriate authorities, and to support organizations that work to prevent and treat child abuse.

The proclamation is a reminder that child abuse is a serious issue that requires the attention of everyone in the community. By working together, we can help prevent child abuse and support survivors.

PJC rips Dragons

By TED LEACH

PJC took on the Dragons in the first game as the Dragons entered this year without the tone of an experienced team. The Dragons had two new coaches, and the only returning player was a senior. The Dragons started well but couldn’t hold on as PJC started strong and pulled ahead. PJC’s lead only increased as the game progressed, and the final score was 12-4 in favor of PJC. The second game against the Red Dragons was a closer match, with PJC winning 11-9. The third game saw the Dragons fight back, but PJC held on to win 10-8. The fourth game was another win for PJC, 13-7. The final game was another close one, with PJC winning 12-11. Overall, PJC had a strong performance, winning all five games and showing a lot of promise for the season.
