The latest death in the series of auto accidents that have plagued the Panola County area is the fourth to occur this year. The others were in January, March and April.

The accident occurred about 10 p.m. Monday when Kirk was supervising a group of students who were playing football on the school's field. According to witnesses, who were not identified, Kirk was driving a car that was going too fast and lost control of it. He hit a wall and died immediately.

Extension homemakers' clubs grow out of agricultural experiment

War on boll weevil led to Carthage in '88

Linda Kerford Nothstein, 1st President, and Dorothy B. Steedman, 2nd President, are seen at the opening of the new Panola County Extension Office in Carthage on March 20, 1966. The office was dedicated with a ribbon-cutting ceremony and a tour of the building. The opening was attended by local officials, Extension agents, and members of the Extension service. The new office was located in the old court house building, which was renovated and modernized. The office provided a centralized location for the Extension agents and staff to carry out their duties and work on behalf of the county. The opening of the new office was a significant milestone for the Extension service and its work in the county. It expanded the reach and effectiveness of the Extension service, allowing them to better serve the needs of the community.
