Carthage ISD steps up collection of back taxes

By Sherrell Curbey

Carthage Independent School District officials are determined to get back on track in recouping delinquent accounts that are owed from residents. One positive step the board took in this regard was the appointment of Dr. Jerry M. Truett as the district’s new director of collections.

"I was appointed with high hopes, but I also know that we have some difficult tasks ahead of us," Truett said. "We have to collect delinquent taxes from people who owe them, and we have to do it in a way that is fair and just to everyone involved." Truett has more than 20 years of experience in collections, including 15 years in the public sector.

"I understand the challenges we face," Truett said. "But I also know that we have a responsibility to ensure that the district has the funds it needs to operate." Truett has been in the position since the beginning of the year.

The new director of collections has already seen some results in his efforts to increase collections. In the first six months of his tenure, collections have increased by 17 percent, and the number of delinquent accounts has decreased by 27 percent.

"I am very pleased with the progress we have made," Truett said. "But we have a long way to go, and we need the support of the community to help us accomplish our goals." Truett is committed to working with residents to ensure that their taxes are paid in a timely manner, and he is confident that he can lead the district to success.
