Life just bed of roses (and more) for Edwardses

Rose king, queen keep royally blooming yard

In the Edwardses' rose garden, there are numerous varieties of roses, including the King of the South, which is one of the grandest. The roses are divided into three distinct sections: bed of roses, rose king, and queen.

The bed of roses is rich with red, white, pink, and orange roses, creating a stunning display. The rose king, a black Chiffon rose, is a striking addition to the garden, and the queen, a white rose, completes the triptych of color.

Edwardses examine blooms in one of rose gardens that create series of focal points throughout yard.

Miniatures are among Edwardses' favorites.

Friends and passerby often stop to admire the Edwardses' garden, remarking on its beauty and uniqueness. The Edwardses are proud of their garden and enjoy sharing it with others.
