County sidesteps unit road system

By John Cochrane

Pot News Editor

For the past 20 years or so, Panola County has been trying to establish a unit system of road management, a system that would allow the county commissioners courts to supervise the local program. Panola County is one of many counties in Texas that are trying to establish a unit system of road management, but it is one of the few that has been successful in doing so.

As of the date of this article, Panola County has no present organized way to change the way its roads are maintained and repaired.

Officers avoid gunfire in capture of suspects

By Sherpaal Curby

Staff Writer

Panola County Sheriff's officers were successful in capturing a suspect who fled after a police chase on Monday night.

According to Sheriff's Department assistant chief deputy J.D. Edwards, the suspect fled into a wooded area and was eventually caught by the officers.

Residents along highway unhappy about settlement

By Sandy Young

Staff Writer

Residents along Highway 360 in the Coldspring area are unhappy about a settlement reached between the county and Highway 360, Inc., a private company.

The settlement will allow Highway 360, Inc., to build a toll road along the highway.

80's dating more a job
than an adventure

The generation centered on dating in the 80's. We agonized over a boy or a girl. We were bombarded by ads and movies and music to get us to buy, to sell, to advertise. The atmosphere was that we were being sold.

However, the real job of dating in the 80's was not to sell, but to advertise. We were being sold to advertise ourselves. We were being sold to advertise our potential as a dating partner.

Country oil, gas activity

Luna R. Inc. of Longview has been exploring for gas in the area of LaFollette in the Rusk area for the past three weeks. The company has found a gas formation that it believes can be commercially developed. Luna R. has been drilling a test well in the area and has encountered a gas column that is estimated to be 100 feet deep. The company plans to continue drilling to determine the size of the gas field.

Protests mar games kids playing

Two cheers are about to take a trip to the nearest playground because two young children were playing with a gun, according to the local police department. The police were called to the scene where the two children were playing with a toy gun. The police officer who responded to the call said that the children were playing with a toy gun, not a real one. The police officer said that the children were playing in a safe area and that there were no risks involved. The police officer said that the children were playing with a toy gun, not a real one.
