Workmen's compensation spirals

Nursing home, PGH hit hard by premiums

By John Coleman

Real News Editor

COVID-19 has caused a spike in the cost of workmen's compensation insurance. Panola General Hospital, along with other employers, is looking for alternative ways in which to provide for employees who suffer injuries on the job. The hospital is part of a group of employers that have formed a board of insurance brokers licensed for auto and property insurance. The board has recently purchased a workmen's compensation policy for insurance from the Mid-South Insurance Group. The cost of the policy is about $4,500 per year. The policy is a "renewable" policy, which means that the rate will not be changed for the next year.

When taxes rise, officials have to look hard at budgets

It's been said that only two things are certain: death and taxes. Most of us didn't think of state taxes when we were young, and we probably still don't think of them now. But it's a fact of life that taxes are part of our daily lives. Even though they may not be as visible as they once were, they are still there, and they can really add up over time.

On the surface, it might seem that taxes are just a necessary evil that we all have to pay. But at the core, taxes are a way for the government to fund its operations. Without taxes, the government would not be able to provide the services that we expect, such as education, healthcare, and public safety.

So what can we do to make sure that our taxes are being used effectively? One thing that we can do is to look hard at the budgets that govern our taxes. This means being vigilant about where our money is going and making sure that it is being used in the most effective way possible.

Another way to do this is to get involved. We can attend public meetings, write letters to the editor, and speak up for what we believe in. By doing this, we can help to ensure that our taxes are being used in the best possible way.

In the end, taxes are a necessary part of our lives. But by being informed and active, we can help to make sure that they are being used effectively and efficiently.

The 'new fatherhood'

It is clear that the 'new fatherhood' is here. Gone are the days when a man could simply walk into a woman's home and expect to be welcomed with open arms. In today's society, women are just as likely to be the head of the household as men are.

In fact, a recent study found that women are now more likely to be the sole breadwinner in a family than men are. This is a significant change from the past, when men were typically the sole providers.

There are many reasons for this change. One is that women are now more educated and have more job opportunities. Another is that women are more likely to be in non-traditional roles, such as in the military or in law enforcement.

This new role for women has brought about many changes in society. For example, there is now a greater acceptance of homosexuality and same-sex relationships. In addition, there is a greater awareness of domestic violence and abuse.

These changes have not been without their challenges, however. Women who are in non-traditional roles may still face discrimination and bias. And there is still a long way to go before we have truly achieved equality for all.

PNH prepares for inspection

By Barry Hoover

Administration and facilities

Over the past few weeks, the PNH has been preparing for an inspection by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. The inspection is scheduled to take place in July, and the hospital has been busy making sure that everything is in order.

The Joint Commission is a nonprofit organization that accredits and inspects healthcare organizations. Its inspectors will be looking at a variety of areas, including patient care, safety, and staff training.

The hospital's top administrator, Dr. John Doe, said that the team has been working hard to get everything ready. "We want to make sure that we are doing everything we can to provide the best possible care for our patients," he said.

The inspection will be a busy time for the hospital, with many things happening at once. But the team is confident that they will be able to handle everything. "We're ready," said Dr. Doe. "We're going to do our best to make sure that the Joint Commission is impressed."

We want to build something different—something unique. Of course the building alone isn't the church, but the church needs to use every advantage it can to reach people—to make an impact.

—Arnold Shrewsbury

All the churches surveyed were in agreement. And for each one, the vision was unique to that church. Whether it be new construction, renovations, or additions, each church needed to make an impact and do it in a way that was unique to their community.

Strength For Living

BY JERRY BURKHARD

We are in the midst of a crisis in the United States, and it is affecting our health, our families, and our communities. The crisis is obesity. It is estimated that 34% of adults and 17% of children in the United States are obese, and it is estimated that 1 in 3 children will develop diabetes by the age of 20. Obesity is a major risk factor for heart disease, stroke, type 2 diabetes, and certain types of cancer. It is estimated that 400,000 deaths in the United States are caused by obesity each year. Obesity is a major contributor to the cost of health care in the United States, with the annual cost of obesity estimated at $150 billion.

The root of the problem is that we eat too much and exercise too little. We are surrounded by temptations to eat high-calorie, low-nutrient foods, and we have access to fast food and convenience stores wherever we go. We are also sedentary, sitting for hours at a time, whether we work at a desk or drive a car.

The solution is to eat a balanced diet and get regular exercise. We need to make healthier choices, both in what we eat and in how we live our lives. We need to find ways to get regular exercise, even if it is just a 10-minute walk each day. We need to make healthy choices, both in what we eat and in how we live our lives.
