Drought relief available for local ag producers

By John Coleman

The National Drought Mitigation Center and the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service are offering drought relief for small farmers and ranchers. According to the center, water is a critical resource for agriculture, and it is essential to conserve water during drought.

Due to the ongoing drought, the center recommends that farmers and ranchers implement conservation practices to reduce water usage. These practices include:

1. Irrigation scheduling: Farmers and ranchers should schedule irrigation based on soil moisture conditions and weather forecasts.
2. Improved irrigation systems: Implementing more efficient irrigation systems, such as drip irrigation, can significantly reduce water usage.
3. Soil conservation practices: Practices like cover cropping and reduced tillage can help retain soil moisture.
4. Water harvesting: Collecting and storing rainwater can provide a reliable water source during drought.
5. Water reuse: Reusing water from irrigation or washdown systems can also help conserve water.

The center also recommends that farmers and ranchers monitor their water usage and adjust their practices accordingly. They should also consider alternative water sources, such as recycled water or water from aquifers.

For more information, contact the National Drought Mitigation Center or the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service.

State architect visits, evaluates

1891 jail pronounced ‘unique’

By Dorothy Holtz

The 1891 jail, located in downtown El Paso, is considered one of the most historic and architecturally significant buildings in the city. The jail was originally designed by renowned architect Frank Lloyd Wright and was built using local materials such as brick and stone.

The jail was closed in 1973 and has been used for various purposes, including as a museum and a gallery. In 2010, it was added to the National Register of Historic Places.

The jail features several unique architectural elements, including a central clock tower, a cast-iron fence, and a series of arched windows. The jail has also been used as a filming location for several movies and television shows.

The jail is currently undergoing renovation and restoration efforts, with the goal of preserving its historical significance and providing a space for educational and cultural activities.

News
BY MRS. CLOIS BAKER

Hello readers, am you enjoying the warm weather? Sure, but the heat can also be a bit uncomfortable. We had a busy weekend, and I thought I'd share a few fun stories with you.

We had a big event in my neighborhood. The local residents put on a fantastic fair, with games, food, and music. It was a great way to celebrate the summer and come together.

Another story I heard was about a local family who decided to paint their house. They chose a bright shade of blue, and it really added a pop of color to the neighborhood.

I also heard about a new business that opened up nearby. They're selling some amazing sandwiches, and I can't wait to try them out.

That's all for now. I hope everyone is enjoying their summer as much as I am.

Invertebrate Beast Feast proves test of backbone

By Ginger Harrell

When it comes to eating sea life, some people can handle it all. But most of us prefer our creature comforts more traditional. Yet, an intrepid group of diners at the Carriage House in Woodville, Texas, recently made an effort to conquer the sea by partaking in an invertebrate feast. The occasion was the second annual “Invertebrate Beast Feast” hosted by the Carriage House, which is known for its unique dining experiences. The evening was a celebration of the ocean’s bounty and the unique culinary challenge that comes with it.

Invertebrates, the name given to these sea creatures, are a diverse group of animals that includes crabs, squids, and even certain types of eggs. Despite their name, they are not necessarily all invertebrates, as some can be found invertebrates. The invertebrate feast was a chance for diners to experience the diverse flavors and textures of these sea dwellers.

The menu included a variety of dishes made from invertebrates, such as crabs, squids, and oysters. Each dish was carefully prepared to highlight the unique flavors and textures of the invertebrates. The meal started with a selection of fresh seafood, including crabs and squids, followed by a main course consisting of oysters. The meal was topped off with a dessert made from invertebrates.

The invertebrate feast was not without its challenges. Diners had to overcome their fears of trying new foods and learning to appreciate the unique flavors and textures of invertebrates. Despite the challenges, the diners were remarkably successful in managing their fears and enjoying the experience.

The invertebrate feast was a success and received positive feedback from the diners. Many praised the creativity and originality of the menu and the unique culinary challenge it presented. The invertebrate feast was a testament to the creativity and originality of the Carriage House in Woodville, Texas.

Watch For Your Church's Pictures Here Every Week In The Panola Post.
This is a story about a young man named Joe who went on a tour of the city of San Antonio. Joe was a cheerful and enthusiastic young man who enjoyed exploring new places. He was accompanied by his friends, Ben and Sarah, who shared his enthusiasm for adventure.

Joe and his friends decided to start their tour by visiting the Alamo. The Alamo was an important historical site that held significant historical value. Joe and his friends spent some time exploring the exhibits and learning about the history of the Alamo.

After visiting the Alamo, Joe and his friends decided to explore the rest of the city. They walked through the streets and visited some of the popular tourist spots. Joe was particularly interested in the architecture of the city and was amazed by the beauty of the buildings.

Later in the day, Joe and his friends decided to visit the San Antonio Riverwalk. The Riverwalk was a popular attraction in the city and offered a unique perspective of the city. Joe and his friends took a boat ride down the river and enjoyed the view of the city from the water.

As the day came to an end, Joe and his friends decided to return to their hotel. They were tired but happy after a day of exploring the city. Joe looked forward to the next day and the new adventures that awaited him.

In conclusion, Joe's tour of San Antonio was an exciting and memorable experience. He learned a lot about the history of the city and enjoyed the beautiful scenery. Joe was happy to have spent a day exploring the city and was looking forward to his next adventure.

Strength For Living

I lay stretched out flat on my back on a beautiful sunny lawn in the middle of a field. The sun was shining brightly and the sky was clear. I felt the warmth of the sun on my skin and the gentle breeze blowing through the clouds that wereandering in the sky. The sky was a beautiful shade of blue, and the clouds looked like fluffy cotton candy.

My eyes were closed, and I leaned back against the grass. I took a deep breath and let it out slowly, feeling the air fill my lungs.

I felt a sense of peace and calm wash over me. I was able to clear my mind and let go of all the stress and worries that had been weighing on me.

I opened my eyes and looked up at the sky. The clouds were drifting by, and the sun was setting in the distance. I felt a sense of contentment and gratitude for this beautiful moment.

But then, the storm clouds appeared. I could see them looming in the distance, getting darker and darker. I knew I needed to get inside.

I stood up and started walking towards the house. I could feel the raindrops falling on my face, and I started running.

I arrived at the front door just as the first raindrop hit me. I opened the door and stepped inside. I closed the door behind me and looked out the window at the rain.

I felt relieved to be safe from the storm. I took a deep breath and let it out slowly, feeling the air fill my lungs. I knew that this moment of strength and resilience was important for me.
