Businessmen sue county

By Harold Coffee
Staff Writer
Two Caruthers businesses have filed lawsuits challenging the county tax base.

"We measured every building, commercial and residential, and used it in a formula using market values... We feel very confident about the case."
— Jewel Ellis, chief appraiser

The lawsuits, filed by Jewel Ellis and the Towne Restaurant, are challenging the county's tax base. Ellis said the county's tax base is too high, resulting in higher property taxes for businesses and residents.

The "rebalanced look" is one of the things that makes the job worth it, said Ward. "It makes me feel good to see one that's in good shape. I love keeping them working and looking good."

Ward is one of the teachers who helped to design the speed and acceleration curriculums. He said, "If you don't have speed and acceleration, you'll have a hard time when a student actually tests and he's in the backseat and he's kind of rebellious."
When the mud begins to fly

Politicians are sometimes being held hostage, and anyone who believes a candidate can make a serious run for office without support, failure is bound to follow. The campaign for the presidency is one of the most expensive and time-consuming tasks a politician can undertake. With the cost of advertising, travel, and staff salaries, it is not uncommon for a candidate to spend millions of dollars on their campaign. The need for support is critical to the success of a candidate, as they seek to build a coalition of voters who will support their policies and help them win elections. Without support, a candidate may struggle to get their message out and may face difficulties in raising funds to sustain their campaign.

Carthage freshmen humble Palestine

By TED LEAHY

The Carthage High School football team opened its season with a 27-8 victory over Palestine. The victory was expected, but not without some challenges.

The game started with a fumble by Palestine. Carthage was able to recover and score a touchdown. Palestine then scored a touchdown on its next possession, but Carthage was able to hold on for the victory.

Carthage turnovers were a concern, as they were forced to punt several times. However, the defense was able to hold Palestine scoreless after those possessions.

Carthage coach Don Johnson said the team needs to improve its special teams. "We didn't do our best job on special teams," he said. "But we were able to hang on for the victory."
