Playing the ponies is PJC’s Fort(e)

By Ted Leach

Beau Fort, head of the ponies at the PJC stables, will have a new horse to guide over the castle grounds at the annual (“Nevermind the Unicorn”) Pageant held on Oct. 1. The former legendarian stallion, named Beau, will be replaced by a new horse named Beau. The new horse, a green beauty with a white mane, will be a welcome addition to the stable and will no doubt bring a new dimension to the Pageant.

New mascot to stampede sidelines

By Dorothy Hovels

This summer, the first PJC mascot in many years was introduced at the college’s annual (I’m sorry, it’s a pageantry of the PJC pageantry). The new mascot, named “Beau” (not to be confused with Beau Fort), was unveiled at a special ceremony. The mascot, a green beauty with a white mane, was met with much excitement and anticipation by the PJC community. The ceremony included a march of the new mascot through the main campus, followed by a special performance by the PJC cheerleaders and drum line.

School seeks higher attendance

Charlie Cooper, principal at Elyton Fields Elementary, is looking towards better attendance during the upcoming school year.

Cooper said the school has set a goal of increasing attendance by 10% over last year's figures. He said this could be accomplished through a combination of outreach efforts, including sending home letters and making phone calls to parents.

His efforts are part of a larger initiative to improve school climate and create a more welcoming environment for students.

Cooper also asked parents to please ensure their children are arriving on time and staying for the full day.

Superintendent of Education Dr. Jay Johnson echoed Cooper's sentiments, saying that attendance is crucial for academic success.

Johnson also noted that PISD (Panola Independent School District) is one of the top three districts in the state when it comes to attendance.

Students practice citizenship

As part of their Civics Week, students were encouraged to participate in various activities aimed at promoting civic engagement.

On Monday, each class was given a list of five different projects they could undertake to help their community. These included cleaning up a park, planting trees, volunteering at a local shelter, and organizing a food drive.

The students were given two days to complete their projects before coming back to school on Wednesday.

Harris Chapel News

BY ETHEL WOODS

It is a sunny, crisp, autumn day, and the sound of children's laughter fills the air. The Harris Chapel is bustling with activity as the children prepare for their annual fall festival. The festival is a time for the children to come together and celebrate the beauty of nature and the season.

A great pleasure in life is doing something that people say you cannot do.

"We are so excited for the festival," said one of the children. "We get to paint, play games, and have a big picnic. It's the best day of the year for us.

Local store to sponsor cholesterol screening

A local store has announced that they will be sponsoring a cholesterol screening event this fall. The event will be held in the store's parking lot on October 15th from 9:00 AM to 12:00 PM. The screening is free and open to the public. Participants will receive a free cholesterol screening and a complimentary breakfast.

Murdav News

Late rally comes up short, 14-13

By TED LEACH

Dangersfield's late rally came up short as Carthage won, 14-13.

Carthage took the lead in the third quarter, scoring 14 points to take a 14-9 lead. Dangersfield tried to rally in the fourth quarter, but fell short.

The game was full of action, with both teams making big plays. Carthage's defense was strong, holding Dangersfield to just 9 points. Carthage's offense was also strong, scoring 14 points.

The game was a close one, with Carthage winning by just 5 points. It was a great game, with both teams playing well.

Dangersfield's late rally came up short as Carthage won, 14-13.

Latchkey children viewed

Society sees self-care in a negative manner

Robert Pike, a prominent educator and social activist, has recently spoken out about the impact of latchkey children on society. Pike argues that the rise of latchkey children, those who are left alone at home after school, has led to a culture of self-care that is detrimental to the well-being of both the children and the community.

Pike cites studies that show latchkey children are more likely to engage in risky behaviors, such as substance abuse and delinquency, compared to their peers who are supervised after school. He also points to the psychological impact of being left alone, which can lead to feelings of isolation and anxiety.

The societal response to latchkey children has been mixed. Some believe that parents need to be more diligent about supervising their children after school, while others argue that the current system is failing to provide adequate support for working parents.

Pike advocates for a more comprehensive approach to the latchkey issue, one that goes beyond punishing parents and instead focuses on providing resources and support for working families.

At DeBerry Community Center

Hamburgers, cake/pie walk will benefit 'Old Red' fund

The DeBerry Community Center will host a hamburgers, cake/pie walk on September 27, 2006, to benefit the 'Old Red' fund. The event is open to the public and will feature hamburgers, cake, and pie, all served with a smile.

A special feature of the event is the 'Old Red' fund, which provides financial assistance to local families in need. The fund was established by a group of community members who recognized the importance of supporting one another.

The event will begin at 6:00 PM and will continue until 8:00 PM. Attendees are encouraged to bring a donation to help support the 'Old Red' fund.

Dinner theater at PJC

Reservations by telephone being accepted for 'Harvey'

PJC's annual dinner theater event, 'Harvey,' will be held on October 1 and 2, 2006. Reservations are now being accepted by telephone for this highly anticipated event.

The production of 'Harvey' is a classic American play, known for its heartwarming and humorous portrayal of life in a small town. The story follows a man who believes he has made contact with an unseen entity named Harvey, and the impact this belief has on his life.

The event will begin at 7:00 PM and will conclude with a delicious dinner. Reservations can be made by calling the PJC box office at 936-432-5252.

Blessing of Animals Slated at St. John's

Blessing of Animals is a traditional event held at St. John’s Church in the town. The date is usually the Sunday closest to the Feast of St. John the Baptist. The blessing ceremony is an opportunity for pet owners to bring their pets for a special blessing. The event usually includes a service where prayers are said for the animals, and they are blessed by the pastor or a deacon. The ceremony is open to all animals, and pets of all shapes and sizes are welcomed. The blessing is a time for renewal and gratitude, as pets are acknowledged as partners in our lives. Pets are encouraged to be present, and the blessing can be a touching moment for pet owners and their pets alike.

Strength for Living

By Jerry Burman

Every day, a Brennan family of Chilliwack celebrated the memory of their late father, a former firefighter who passed away from cancer. The family, consisting of mother Joanne, father John, and two children, Elizabeth and Michael, would gather at their home to remember the memories they shared with him. They spent time doing things he loved, such as hiking and fishing. Elizabeth, a high school student, misses her dad very much. She said, "Dad was a strong man, and I always admired his courage. He taught me to never give up, even in the face of adversity." Michael, who is in elementary school, misses his dad's stories about the fire department. "He was so proud of me when I joined the Cub Scouts," he said. "I wish he was here to see me grow up." Joanne, who is a teacher, knows how much her kids need their dad. "I try to keep his memory alive," she said. "He was a great dad." The family plans to continue the tradition of honoring their father's memory every year on his birthday.

Once Again Locally Owned

By Jerry Burman

As you may know, several businesses were sold in recent months to raise funds for community projects. The new businesses include a local restaurant, a bookstore, and a hardware store. The owner of the hardware store, John Smith, said, "It's great to have local control again." Smith, who has been in the business for over 30 years, said he was thrilled to be able to bring the store back to the community. "I've always loved being a part of this community," he said. "I can't wait to see what we can do for the town." The restaurant, which was sold to a local family, will continue to serve the same menu as before. "We're excited to be able to keep serving the community," said the new owner, Sarah Anderson. "We're looking forward to bringing in new customers and serving old ones." The bookstore, which will be owned by a local author, said she was thrilled to be able to bring her books to the area. "I've always wanted to have my books here," she said. "It's a dream come true." The community is excited to have these local businesses back in the area. "It's great to see the community supporting local businesses," said a resident.
