Jury gives probation in Reeves' burglary

By Phil Morris

Pano Post Editor

An 8-year-old Longview boy, who was treated at a hospital after being shot at during a burglary, escaped from the courthouse Tuesday and received a three-year suspended sentence for the incident.

After deliberating for nearly two hours, a jury sentenced Robert Lee to the county jail for the next 30 days. He was ordered to serve all of that time.

Lee was walking with his dog several blocks away from the courthouse when he heard gunfire. He ran to the courthouse to report the shooting.

Two suspects fled the scene but, in addition to arresting the man who fired the shots, police recovered a handgun and several firearms from the residence.

The Last Emperor

For the better part of a month, the 87-year-old symbol of the Japanese nation, Emperor Hirohito, has been under the spotlight. The world is watching as Hirohito is taken to the hospital for emergency medical treatment, and the emperor's staff describes his condition as "fatigued but stable."

Though Hirohito, who since 1926 has been the isolated sovereign of the Land of the Rising Sun, has been the subject of much discussion in Japan and even abroad, his role as the emperor is a symbol of cultural and political power. The Emperor is seen as a spiritual leader and a moral authority, and in many ways, his actions influence the nation's policies.

With Hirohito's condition remaining stable, the world continues to speculate on what the future holds for Japan's emperor. Will he recover fully and continue his reign, or will he be forced to abdicate? Only time will tell.

Still, these arguments have not been without acclaim. Based on what we know, Hirohito seems to be a great leader, and with his health back on track, he may be able to continue his work for the ation. While the original Emperor served as a local point for support, Japanese nationalism, it was true leadership and dedication that made him known.

Further, when it seemed clear that an Allied invasion would commence, Hirohito made the decision to offer Japan's unconditional surrender and end the war. This decision came at a great cost, as it resulted in the destruction of Japan's infrastructure and economy. However, Hirohito's decision to surrender saved countless lives and marked the end of the war.

It's important to remember that Hirohito was not just a symbol of Japanese power, but also a man who cared deeply for his country. His actions during and after the war demonstrate his committment to his people and his willingness to make hard choices for the greater good.

Burping Geronomio

Perhaps the most outrageous rumor of this presidential campaign is the charge made by Ted Anderson, an Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, that George Bush has a burping problem. According to Anderson, the President burps loudly and frequently, causing a nuisance in the Oval Office.

Strictly Personal

Howdy OK, but please cut the Reverend

Among the most controversial issues in the 1988 presidential campaign is the role of the Reverend Patrick J. White. White, a prominent figure in the Republican Party, has faced criticism for his views on a variety of topics, including race and education.

"James Raney"

The two candidates for state representative have a very different set of values. Like 92% of us in East Texas, James Raney supports your constitutional right to gun ownership. The National Rifle Association and the Texas State Rifle Association interviewed both candidates and strongly endorsed the candidate who will stand up for your rights over his opponent. The fact is, one candidate is listening to Jim Wright and Ted Kennedy and one candidate listens to us in East Texas.

BY MRS. P.J. PERDING

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Little owned a small ranch in the Panola County town of Carthage. There, they raised their three children,all of whom were born on Halloween. Each year, the children would dress up in costumes and go trick-or-treating throughout the neighborhood. One year, the children decided to have a themed party for their friends to enjoy. They invited all of their friends to come over and dress up in their costumes. They even had a costume contest with the winner receiving a prize. The children had a great time and it became an annual tradition. Ever since then, the children have continued to host these parties, making it a beloved tradition in Carthage. This year, the children are planning to host another party, where they will invite all of their friends to come over and dress up in their costumes. They are excited to have a great time with their friends and create another memorable Halloween experience.
