Irish plum puddings to theme English bazaar

By Dorothy Martin

When this editor was living in the United Kingdom, there was an annual event that I always looked forward to. It was the annual plum pudding bazaar, held in a nearby town each Christmas season. The bazaar was a festive affair, with stalls selling all manner of traditional English goods, including plum puddings, crumpets, and toffees. As a child, I remember the smell of the pudding filling the air, and the sound of the apple peeler cutting through the silence. It was a magical time, and one that I have fond memories of.

However, despite the popularity of the plum pudding bazaar, there were some challenges in sustaining it. The first was the increasing cost of ingredients, which made it difficult to maintain the tradition. The second was the lack of interest from younger generations, who were not familiar with the tradition. But despite these challenges, the bazaar continued, and it was always a highlight of the holiday season.

As I reflect on the situation today, I am struck by the parallels to our own situation. We are facing challenges in sustaining our own traditions, and it is difficult to see a clear path forward. But I believe that there is hope, and that if we can find ways to adapt and innovate, we can continue to enjoy these traditions for many years to come.

In conclusion, I encourage all of us to support our local traditions, whether they be plum pudding bazaars or other cultural events. Let us remember the lessons of the past, and work to ensure that our traditions are preserved for future generations.

The bazaar starts at 11:00 A.M. on Saturday, November 12, and will continue until 5:00 P.M. Admission is free, and there will be plenty of plump puddings and other traditional English goods to enjoy. So come along and join in the fun!
