Researching 30 local families labor of love

By Dorothy Hulst

To only the lucky and the lucky ones, he was a well-known figure in the community. But when James Brown, a local historian, passed away recently, he left behind a legacy of research that could only be described as the labor of love. In this edition of the Panola Watchman, we will explore the life and legacy of James Brown, the man who dedicated his life to uncovering the history of our community.

James Brown was a local historian who was passionate about preserving the history of our community. He wrote extensively on the local history of Panola County, and his research was widely respected. But what made James Brown so unique was his dedication to research. He spent countless hours poring over old records and documents, examining every detail, and painstakingly piecing together the story of our community.

James Brown was a pioneer in the field of local history, and his research was instrumental in our understanding of the past. He was a true gentleman and an inspiration to all who knew him. His legacy lives on through the work he left behind, and we are grateful for his contribution to our community.

We hope you enjoy this edition of the Panola Watchman, dedicated to the memory of James Brown, the man who dedicated his life to preserving our history.

"When my parents wrote to me saying they had planned their own funerals, I was shocked. Then I realized how sensible they are."

They chose Forethought funeral planning. My first reaction was, "Why is this necessary?" But, if you think about it, it makes sense in the letter to me about all the responsibility I would have if things weren't planned in advance. I'd have to make more decisions in a couple of days than I make in a month here at this office. And I can't do it without sufficient information, not even the most emotional..."

Forethought is funeral planning... before the need arises

I'm not saying I agree with all their choices, but I think it's more important that the choices be theirs. At least this way there's no doubt about what they planned it with Forethought funeral planning and paid for it with the Forethought life insurance policy designed and approved specifically for Forethought. And, because they're both between 40 and 50 years old, they couldn't be turned down for any reason. Now there won't be any confusion or rush when the time comes. I think they did a very loving thing and I'm going to tell them right now to tell them thanks... and that I love them.

Call or write for details today while you're thinking about it.
