Four injured by mile-wide natural disaster Wednesday night

Twister leaves citizens homeless

By JOHN KNOZNER

GARY — Many citizenry of Gary were unaware they were living in a natural disaster zone. Wednesday night's violent tornadoes slammed into southeast Indiana, killing several people and leaving thousands homeless.

I was not aware of the tornado at all until after it had passed. I was sitting in my living room with the TV on when I heard a loud noise outside. I went to the window and saw that the sky was darkening. I immediately called 911 and advised them of the situation.

At least ten people inside a nearby house were killed in the storm. Many others were injured. The damage was catastrophic. I saw houses torn apart and trees uprooted. The landscape was completely destroyed.

I was one of the first on the scene. As I surveyed the damage, I realized that I had to get help. I called in the National Guard and other emergency personnel. The scene was chaotic, but we worked together to get the injured to safety and to begin the process of rebuilding.

The town will never be the same again. I urge everyone to contribute what they can to help those in need. This disaster has brought our community together like never before.

Gary, Ind. — Our town was hit hard by the tornadoes on Wednesday night. We were fortunate to have no fatalities, but damage was widespread. Many businesses and homes were destroyed.

I was at home when the tornado hit. I had just finished dinner and was watching TV when I heard the roar of the wind. I immediately ran to the basement and stayed there until it was over.

I came out to find my house in ruins. It was completely destroyed. I saw other houses around me in the same condition. It was a terrible sight.

We need help to rebuild. Many people have lost everything. I urge everyone to donate what they can to help those in need. Together, we can make a difference.
