During special meeting

Commissions approve three additional deputies

The Panola County Commissioners Court approved three new county deputies during a special meeting held Monday night.

During the meeting, the court appointed the following individuals to the positions:

- E.J. Brown
- J.D. Smith
- C.J. Johnson

These new deputies will be responsible for various tasks, including traffic control, road maintenance, and general administrative duties. The court voted unanimously to approve the appointments, and the new deputies will begin their duties immediately.

Stout becomes sheriff

Chester Stout

Stout was sworn in as sheriff on Monday night, taking over from the departing sheriff, Jim Smith.

Stout has been with the Panola County Sheriff's Office for over 30 years and has held various positions, including detective and investigator. He has a strong background in law enforcement and is well-respected by his colleagues.

Stout is seen as a strong leader and is expected to continue the high standards set by his predecessor.

Gas wells being drilled across Panola County

The Panola County Commissioners Court approved the construction of three new gas wells in the county, in order to increase the county's revenue.

The new wells, located in the rural areas of Panola County, will be operated by a local drilling company. The project is expected to generate over $1 million in additional revenue for the county each year.

The decision was met with mixed reactions by local residents, with some expressing concern about the potential impact on the environment.

Other news:

- The Panola County Board of Education has approved a new budget for the upcoming school year.
- The Panola County Library System has received a grant for the purchase of new computer equipment.
- The Panola County Chamber of Commerce has announced a new program to promote tourism in the county.

These are some of the highlights of the latest news from Panola County. For more information, please visit the Panola County website or contact your local newspaper.

Maux completes gunfire training

The Panola Watchman

By area

Panola College officials on Tuesday announced the completion of gunfir training for the school's newest police officer, Matthew Maux.

Maux, a 10-year veteran of the Fort Hood police force, completed the training in April and joined Panola College police in May.

The training included both classroom instruction and practical exercises, including live gunfire.

Maux, who is expected to be fully operational by the end of the summer, said he is pleased to join the Panola College police force.

"I'm excited to join the Panola College police department," Maux said. "I've learned a lot in the past 10 years, and I'm ready to share that knowledge with the students here."
East Texas blueberry season peaks this week

Nature’s convenience food’ gains importance in South

By Donny Martin

Blueberries, once Panola County residents dined on handfuls of the tiny, sweet fruit as a dessert, are now being marketed as a convenience food item. As the season peaks, blueberries are appearing in local markets and on menus throughout the region.

Blueberries are a high source of antioxidants and vitamins, making them a healthy choice for consumers. Producers are capitalizing on this trend by increasing their production and distribution.

AMERICA’S Love Affair with HAMBURGERS

I chose Forethought… funeral planning. I’ve been in funerals when people cry and worry about how much they spent over how much things should be, or they were so grief-stricken they didn’t even think of planning one. I’ve taken care of everything in advance — Funeral Home, My Funeral Director and other people. I’ve done a lot of things that are just so relaxing.
