Brown says hospital saved his life after heart failure

“Without the doctors at Pine Lawn General Hospital, I may not be here today,” said Brown, a resident of Pine Lawn General Hospital. “I am very grateful to them for their care and dedication.”

Brown was diagnosed with a heart condition and underwent surgery at Pine Lawn General Hospital. He credits the hospital staff for saving his life.

Census returns lag; 60 percent in area

Only 60 percent of the census forms were returned by Pine Lawn General Hospital to the U.S. Census Bureau by April 15, according to local officials. The hospital has received a letter from the Census Bureau indicating that they will be revisiting the area.

Farm, garden equipment sale April 26

The Agricultural Commissioner of the Pine Lawn County Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring a farm and garden equipment sale on April 26. The sale will be held at the Canebrake Community Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

County receives tax rebates from state comptroller's office

State Comptroller Bob Lettler said that the county received several million dollars in tax rebates from the state. The rebates were given for various reasons, including a decline in property values.

Parents angry over cheerleader selection

Several parents expressed their displeasure with the selection of the new cheerleader for Pine Lawn High School. They were concerned about the criteria used for selecting the cheerleader and believed that there was discrimination.

Harris ready for change to commissioners post

Harris is preparing for the change to the commissioners post in the upcoming election. He is currently serving as a commissioner in the county and has gained a lot of experience in the position.

Buddy Harris is nearing the end of his term as a commissioner. He has been in office for the past four years and has been an advocate for the community. He is committed to serving the residents and is looking forward to the upcoming election.

Wheat applauds legislative action

House ok’s tax hike on school funding

On Thursday, the Texas House of Representatives passed a bill that would allocate more funding to public education. The bill, sponsored by Representative Jane Wheat, aims to address the growing needs of the education system and improve the quality of education for students across the state.

Representative Wheat spoke passionately about the importance of investing in education, stating, "We must ensure that every child in Texas has access to a quality education, regardless of their zip code or socioeconomic status." The bill, which passed with a vote of 100-0, will now move on to the Senate for further consideration.

The current bill includes increases in funding for public schools, including an additional $5 billion over the next two years. It also mandates a $500 million increase in the state's constitutionally mandated contribution to local school districts.

The bill includes provisions for improving teacher compensation and reducing class sizes, as well as funding for the expansion of pre-kindergarten programs and the expansion of mental health services in schools. The legislation also provides for the creation of a new state agency to monitor and oversee education funding and allocation.

Representative Wheat expressed her optimism about the bill's prospects in the Senate, stating, "I believe that Senator Jones and his colleagues understand the importance of this legislation and will work to ensure its passage into law." The bill is expected to receive a vote in the Senate in the coming weeks.

JP moves to new post

New details emerged this week about the impending departure of John Pursley, who has held various high-level positions within the state government, including director of the state health department.

Pursley is expected to leave his current role to take on a new position in the private sector. The transition is anticipated to occur in the coming months, and Pursley has expressed his intent to continue serving the state in a consultative role.

Pursley's tenure as director of the state health department was marked by significant efforts to improve public health outcomes and address emerging health issues. He has been at the forefront of initiatives aimed at reducing the prevalence of chronic diseases, improving access to healthcare services, and strengthening the state's public health infrastructure.

The new position, which Pursley has described as a leadership role, will allow him to bring his extensive experience in public health to bear on new challenges facing the state. In his new role, Pursley will continue to collaborate with health professionals and policymakers to address pressing issues in the field of public health.

Alaska Gov. Walker announces plans for new university

Governor Bill Walker announced today plans for the construction of a new university in the state. The university, which will be located in Anchorage, is expected to open in 2021.

The new institution will focus on providing a comprehensive range of educational programs, including undergraduate, graduate, and professional degrees. The university aims to serve as a catalyst for economic development and innovation in the region, offering students opportunities to pursue a diverse array of academic interests.

Governor Walker expressed his vision for the new university, stating, "Our goal is to establish an institution that is the engine of change for Alaska. This university will provide a platform for our students to learn and grow, and will be a resource for our communities to thrive." The new university will be a significant step forward in fulfilling the state's commitment to providing world-class education to its residents.

Students Earn Award for Drug Abuse Video

The Carthage High School's Video Production Class has earned an award for their video production of the annual drug awareness education video. The video, titled "A Journey to the Edge," was produced by students in the class under the direction of Mr. John Smith. The video focuses on the dangers of drug abuse and encourages students to make healthy choices. The class was able to film the video in just two days, including the design, production, and editing of the video.

Public Notice

The City of Carthage has adopted complaint and grievance procedures regarding its Texas Community Development Programs. These procedures outline the steps a citizen can take if he wishes to file a written complaint about proposed TCDP activities or implementation of past TCDP activities.
