Doctors hope to operate Monday

By JULIANN RYAN

Doctors at the Scottish Rite Hospital in Dallas said they were hopeful that they could begin treating a 21-year-old man who was injured in an automobile accident on Monday.

The man, who was driving a car, was involved in a head-on collision with another vehicle on Preston Road near the intersection with the Beltway.

He was airlifted to Scottish Rite Hospital where he underwent surgery for a fractured spine. Doctors said they were confident he would make a full recovery.

County compares favorably to area Panola unemployment drops

Panola County unemployment rate is down slightly from last year, according to the latest data from the Texas Workforce Commission.

The unemployment rate for Panola County in March was 4.2%, compared to 4.5% in March 2020. This is slightly lower than the state average of 4.3%.

Regional unemployment rates were also down, with the surrounding counties reporting rates of 4.1% in Hardin County, 4.3% in Jasper County, and 4.0% in Sabine County.

The lower rates could be attributed to a combination of factors, including an improving economy and more jobs being advertised.

Economists say the trend is likely to continue, with job growth expected in the coming months.

Rural physicians discuss why they picked PC

Doctors enjoy quality of life

Rural physicians in the Panola area discussed the factors that led them to choose primary care medicine, which they say offers a better work-life balance and a chance to serve their communities.

Dr. Maria Garcia, a family physician in Centerville, said she was drawn to primary care because of the satisfaction it brings from helping patients achieve better health.

“Primary care is a perfect fit for me,” she said. “I love being able to see patients regularly and help them achieve lasting health improvements.”

Panola could pay half of expansion

Officials say $2 million would be garnered

The Panola County Hospital District board met last week to discuss the possibility of expanding the hospital and building a new parking garage.

The board was considering a proposal to build a $4 million expansion, which would include new patient rooms, a larger emergency department, and a new Intensive Care Unit.

Officials say the project could be funded through a combination of bond proceeds and public-private partnerships.

The proposal would also seek funding from the state to help pay for the project.

Innocent pupils focus on Capitol!

The Oklahoma State Board of Education has decided to ban the teaching of "The Fugitive," a novel by Ira Levin. The decision was made after a group of students complained that the novel was too controversial for school use.

The ban has sparked controversy among educators and parents. Some argue that the novel is a valuable tool for teaching students about the complexities of society. Others believe that the ban is an infringement on the First Amendment and stifles free speech.

Letters to the editor

Supports hospital

Mr. Editor:

I am writing to express my support for the proposed hospital expansion in our community. As a resident of the area, I believe that this project is crucial for the well-being of our community.

The hospital provides critical medical services to our residents, and the expansion will enable it to accommodate an increasing population. This is particularly important in light of the recent demographic trends in our area.

Sincerely,

John Smith

Needed attitude

Mr. Editor:

I would like to express my concern about the lack of community involvement in the hospital expansion project. It is important that we all work together to ensure the success of this important initiative.

I encourage everyone to get involved and make their voices heard. The hospital expansion will benefit our community as a whole, and we should all take ownership in making it a success.

Sincerely,

Mary Jones

Choice of the voters

Mr. Editor:

I believe that the choice of the voters is crucial in determining the success of the hospital expansion project. It is important that we all participate in the voting process and make informed decisions.

I encourage everyone to do their research and consider all the options before casting their ballots. The hospital expansion will have a significant impact on our community, and we should all be familiar with the potential outcomes.

Sincerely,

Robert Brown

Fatty fish rich source of vitamin D

Women need more vitamin D than USRD recommends

Science shows that women need more vitamin D than the US Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) suggests. Vitamin D is essential for bone health, immune function, and overall well-being. The National Institutes of Health recommends a daily intake of 15 micrograms (600 International Units) for adults aged 19-70. However, women have a higher risk of deficiencies due to various factors. They may need more than the RDA to meet their needs.

SELL THE HOSPITAL?

I would like to introduce the concept of hospitals as a commodity in the world of healthcare. In this competitive landscape, hospitals are often evaluated based on their financial performance and operational efficiency. However, the hospital industry is facing significant challenges, particularly in the current economic climate. To address these challenges, hospitals are exploring alternative strategies, such as selling or divesting their assets.

One approach is to sell the hospital and focus on their core business, which is patient care. By selling the hospital, the owners can concentrate on providing high-quality healthcare services instead of managing the facilities. Selling the hospital can also help hospitals reduce their debt, improve their financial stability, and increase their profitability.

Another option is to partner with other organizations, such as insurance companies or healthcare systems. Through partnerships, hospitals can leverage the strengths of their partners to enhance their services and improve patient outcomes. This can include joint ventures, mergers, or acquisitions to increase the hospital's market share and competitive advantage.

We are offering the option of selling all or part of your hospital to the highest bidder. Our team of experts will help you navigate the complexities of the healthcare industry and ensure a smooth transition. We understand the importance of maintaining the hospital's reputation and reputation of your community. We are committed to finding the right buyer and making the best decisions for you.

The largest recent change in my life was getting married. My wife and I have been together for 2 years. We met at a mutual friend's wedding last year. I was immediately drawn to her because she's smart, funny, and has a great sense of humor. We hit it off right away and have been inseparable ever since.

Despite the challenges of long-distance relationship, we've managed to make it work. We communicate almost every day through phone calls, text messages, and video chats. It's not always easy, but we're committed to making it work.

In addition to our personal relationship, we are both passionate about our careers. My wife is a software engineer and I work as a software tester. We often spend our weekends together working on projects, which is something we both enjoy.

Overall, I think the biggest challenge has been the distance. But with effort and dedication, we've been able to make it work. I'm grateful for everything my wife does for me and I hope we can continue to grow as a couple for many years to come.
In-house laundry service is economical

According to Panola General Hospital, the average cost per patient day at the hospital is significant. To ensure the hospital's continued success, the In-House Laundry Service was established to provide high-quality laundry services to patients. The service not only saves money but also benefits patients and the environment by reducing waste and conserving water.

In-house laundry service is economical

According to Panola General Hospital Administrator Bill MacKinnon, the hospital's in-house laundry service has a variety of benefits, including:

- Cost savings: It saves the hospital money by avoiding the costs associated with outsourcing laundry services.
- Quality control: By handling the laundry in-house, the hospital maintains better control over the quality of the laundry service.
- Environmental benefits: In-house laundry reduces the carbon footprint associated with transportation and outsourcing.

The laundry department is responsible for washing and drying thousands of pieces of linens and clothing needed by patients daily. Employees work around the clock to ensure that patients have clean and fresh linens available.

Do you have a healthy heart?

BY EDNA C. DAVISON, RN, MS
President, The American College of Physicians and Gynecologists

Many women may not recognize that one of the leading causes of death is heart disease. About 35 million women at all ages suffer from coronary heart disease. Here are a few facts about heart disease in women:

- Heart disease is the leading cause of death among women, as well as men. Overall, about 40 million women are at risk for heart disease.
- Women with heart disease are more likely to have heart attacks than men who do not have heart disease. Women who do not have heart disease are more likely to have heart attacks than men who do not have heart disease. Women who do not have heart disease are more likely to have heart attacks than men who do not have heart disease.

Making changes in your lifestyle may help prevent heart disease. Here are a few tips:

- Eat a heart-healthy diet. This means limiting your intake of saturated and trans fats, and choosing foods that are high in fiber and nutrients. A heart-healthy diet is rich in fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and lean protein sources such as fish, poultry, and beans.
- Get regular exercise. Aim for at least 150 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic activity each week or 75 minutes of vigorous-intensity aerobic activity each week. Also, try to include muscle-strengthening activities at least two days a week.
- Maintain a healthy weight. Keeping a healthy weight can help lower your risk of heart disease. If you are overweight or obese, try to lose weight and keep it off by making small, healthy changes to your diet and physical activity routine.
- Manage your blood pressure and blood sugar. If you have high blood pressure or high blood sugar, you can take steps to lower your risk of heart disease. This includes eating a heart-healthy diet, getting regular exercise, and not smoking.
- Avoid smoking. Smoking is a strong risk factor for heart disease. If you smoke, consider quitting. It's never too late to start.
- Limit alcohol. Drinking too much alcohol can raise your blood pressure and increase your risk of heart disease. If you drink alcohol, do so in moderation, which means no more than one drink per day for women and no more than two drinks per day for men.
- Keep your cholesterol under control. High cholesterol levels can increase your risk of heart disease. Ask your doctor about your cholesterol levels and discuss any changes you can make to lower them.
- Be physically active. Regular physical activity can help lower your risk of heart disease. Aim to get at least 150 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic activity each week or 75 minutes of vigorous-intensity aerobic activity each week. Also, try to include muscle-strengthening activities at least two days a week.
- Manage your stress. Long-term stress can contribute to heart disease. Find healthy ways to cope with stress, such as regular exercise, deep breathing, meditation, and taking time for yourself.

By making these changes in your lifestyle, you can help prevent heart disease and live a longer, healthier life.
