The United States and the Soviet Union also engaged in a number of political and economic conflicts, including the Cold War, which lasted from 1947 to 1991. The end of the Cold War was a significant event in history, and it has had a profound impact on the world. The United States and the Soviet Union have both been involved in many international conflicts, and they have both played a role in the development of nuclear weapons. The United States and the Soviet Union have also been involved in a number of economic conflicts, including the Sino-Soviet split.
