County has bright future as newly elected officers get to work on the task ahead

The time of Panama County government is beginning to come into focus, especially as County Manager Larry Taylor and Judges of the County Court of Justice, have a bright future ahead of them.

Larry Taylor was re-elected to his second term in office after running unopposed in the recent election. Although County Court of Justice judges are appointed by the Governor, they are subject to confirmation by the Panama County Commission.

Taylor, who ran unopposed in the recent election, has set out to accomplish several goals in his second term. One of his main priorities is to increase the number of officers in the county, which will help to reduce the backlog of cases.

Taylor also aims to improve the efficiency of the court system, which will help to reduce the waiting time for people who are seeking justice.
