Proposed district attorney would abolish county attorney's office

Samford says voters should choose d.a.

By CHARLES MACLEAN

Legislation presently pending before the Texas Legislature is creating a stir among court and political observers in Panhandle County as it appears to have the effect of abolishing the office of county attorney. Rep. Jerry Johnson is pushing the measure through both the House and the Senate. The proposal would make the county attorney a district attorney who would not be elected by the voters of Panhandle County but appointed by the Governor. The measure would also cut the number of district attorneys from 40 to 30, according to Johnson.

The measure is currently being studied by the Joint Committee on Governmental Research, and a decision will be made soon on whether to pass it or not.

Efforts to reach the office of the Speaker of the House and the Senate President were unsuccessful. However, a spokesperson for the House of Representatives said, "The Representative did not return our calls, and we do not have any information on the status of the bill.

A spokesperson for the Senate said, "The Senate President was not available for comment. We will continue to monitor the situation.

When Luke McDaniels learned the Methodist Church was hosting a rummage sale, he never thought to find 12-year-old Mandy McDaniels, who passed away from a heart attack.

But within an hour, the 10-year-old Mandy McDaniels, who had seemingly disappeared, was found safe and sound in the back of a car.

"I was sitting in the back of the car," Mandy McDaniels said. "I was watching TV when I heard a noise. I turned around and saw Luke McDaniels, who was sitting in the front seat. I asked him what was wrong. He said, "I saw a person fall into the water," Mandy McDaniels said.

Luke McDaniels, a 12-year-old boy, was out for a walk when he noticed a person in the water. He immediately ran to the nearest house to call for help. When the firefighters arrived, they found the victim was Mandy McDaniels, who had passed away from a heart attack.

The entire community has come together to support the McDaniels family during this difficult time. A memorial service will be held on Saturday.
