Mur vault spillway damaged

By CHARLES MCCLURE

Eight reservoir computer outages of the Lake Mur vault spillway have been traced back to a single cause: a problem with the overflow outlet. The spillway was installed in 1983 after heavy rainfall caused the dam to overflow. Since then, the area has been prone to periodic flooding, and the spillway has served as a safety measure.

The problem was first noticed in 1993, when the spillway did not function properly. Since then, repairs have been made to the system, but the issue persists. The spillway is currently under investigation, and a new system is being considered to prevent future outages.

Beckville ISD contested

Panola Nursing Home fate up to electorate

By JIM WARRICK

The fate of the Panola Nursing Home, located in Beckville, Texas, is in the hands of the voters. The facility has been under fire for several months, with a number of complaints filed against it.

Recently, the Panola County Commissioners Court voted to allow the electorate to decide the future of the nursing home. A referendum will be held on May 9, and the outcome will determine whether the facility will remain open.

The nursing home has faced numerous challenges, including staffing issues and regulatory violations. If the electorate votes to close the facility, it will be the first nursing home in the county to do so in recent memory.

The area code change is expected to have a minimal impact on businesses, with the exception of some in the Panola area. These businesses will need to make adjustments to their phone systems to accommodate the new code.

Empty Classroom

By Charles McCall

In the early morning hours of August 1st, the sun began to rise on the horizon, casting a warm glow over the quiet town. The streets were still, and the only sound was the gentle rustling of leaves in the breeze. The town was asleep, dreaming of the day ahead.

As the day progressed, the streets began to wake up. Children ran outside to play, their laughter filling the air. The town was alive and bustling, ready to face the day.

The sun set, and the town settled down for the night. The children returned to their homes, tired but happy, their faces lit up with the promise of tomorrow. The town was quiet once again, waiting for the cycle to begin anew.

As the days went by, the town continued to thrive. Children ran outside to play, their laughter filling the air. The town was alive and bustling, ready to face the day.

Then, one day, the children didn’t return. The streets were empty, and the town was quiet once again. The town was waiting for the cycle to begin anew.

The town was still asleep, dreaming of the day ahead.
