Decision to be rendered in two weeks

PGH bids being mulled

By CHARLES BAUCHEL

Pittsburgh County Commissioners are expected to render a decision in the near future on bids submitted by a number of contractors for construction of the General Hospital expansion project. The issue is expected to be submitted to the commissioners by the second week of July at the latest.

In their action, they have the option of awarding the contract to any one of four bidders, including the low bidder, or to any combination of these bidders. The commissioners are expected to render a decision on these options in the next two weeks.

Second verse, same as the first

Thomas comes home

By STANLEY THOMAS

The second verse of the old song "Thomas comes home," popularized by the late Bob Dylan, is: "I'll be home in a little while, I'll be home in a little while, I'll be home in a little while, I'll be home in a little while." This verse is often used as a reference to the concept of homecoming, and is commonly associated with themes of return and reunion.

Shelbyville construction aided by Panola money

School districts have limited funds for construction projects, and often rely on state and federal funding to help finance major projects. Shelbyville is a town in Tennessee, known for its rich history and cultural heritage.

Victim of the system

By CHARLES BAUCHEL

Editor

Although the image is not clearly identified as an original editorial piece, it appears to be a reflection on the theme of victimhood and its implications. It may suggest a broader discussion on the consequences of systemic issues and the need for change.

Tax expert to visit courthouse Thursday

Cherokee county tax lawyers will be available from a tax law firm to discuss tax issues on Thursday, July 5, at the Cherokee County Courthouse. The purpose of the event is to educate residents on tax-related matters and provide them with guidance on how to navigate the tax system.
