Panola County proud of grads

Panola County graduates have now walked the stage and taken a huge step towards a new world. For some, it is an end, for others, it is a new beginning. A world where hard work and dedication will pay off. A world where the knowledge and skills they have acquired will be useful. A world where they can make a difference.

Verbal slips aren't just confined to politicians

Lessons learned are never easy

We had to point the finger at politicians for making verbal slip-ups during recent public appearances. A recent presidential candidate was caught in a lie, and another was caught making a statement that was contrary to his earlier position. It's not just politicians who make mistakes, but it's a reminder that everyone makes mistakes and that these mistakes can have serious consequences.

Emus find home in Panola County

Thurman raises Australian birds

By LESLIE MOODY

"It was a moment, a moment of destiny," Thurman tells of the day Emus ran into his Penole home. "I was working in the yard and saw them running through the field." He added, "It's a great experience to have these birds in our country."

Emu's are native to Australia, but they have been successfully raised in the Panola County area for several years. Thurman says, "These Emus are very friendly and get along well with other birds."

The Emus that Thurman raises are males and females. "They are both very beautiful in their own way," he said. "The males are larger and have a distinctive neck pouch, which is used for display purposes."

"The females are also beautiful," he continued. "They have a unique crested head, which is a distinctive feature of the Emu."

Thurman raises Emus on his farm, which he describes as a “natural paradise” for the birds. "They have plenty of room to roam and access to fresh water," he said. "We also provide them with a variety of foods, including grains and supplements."

"The Emus have been very well-behaved," Thurman said. "They are very independent and rarely require any intervention from me."

"I am very excited to have these Emus in my life," he concluded. "They have brought a lot of joy and a sense of accomplishment to my life."

We Have Our Reasons
For Doing Things As We Do

Those who have grown up in a close family know the value of togetherness. And we at Hawthorn Funeral Home know it, too.

At Hawthorn Funeral Home, we're dedicated people in a caring profession.

Other funeral homes can rely primarily on part-time help, but not us. All of our licensed funeral directors are here for you on a daily basis. Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week.

We'll work together to provide the full support you expect for your family and friends during a time of need, and we'll give extra organization to the various efforts of clergy, musicians, pallbearers, cemetery staff and any others you may want involved.

Because we understand the value of togetherness in relation to funeral service.

At Hawthorn Funeral Home, we do things as we do, seven days a week, because we want to.

Andrews gives routine sitcom sparkle

"Mikey, it's a routine season on sitcoms. We're always looking for new and fresh ideas to keep our audience engaged. But sometimes, it's best to go back to basics, and that's exactly what we did this season. Mikey's routines are always a hit with our viewers, and this year was no exception. They loved his hilarious puns and zany antics. He's become a true icon of the sitcom world."

TNT wins with warm, wise 'Keep the Change'

"The goal of the show is to explore the theme of survival and the importance of community. The characters are forced to adapt to their new reality and learn to rely on one another. It's a story about the human spirit and our ability to overcome adversity. The show has been very well received, and we hope to continue exploring these themes in future episodes."
