no cancer than to have 20 percent of the population suffering from the disease. But 20 percent is a very high percentage, and it means that many people are going to have a very difficult time with this disease. It is a burden on society, and it is a burden on the individual.

Lupkin has supported the idea of a national cancer policy, which would provide for better research and better treatment of cancer patients. She has been active in the American Cancer Society, and she has served on the board of trustees of the National Cancer Institute.

Lupkin's work has been recognized with many awards, including the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the Nation's highest civilian honor. She has been a vocal advocate for cancer research and treatment, and she has been a strong voice for the needs of cancer patients.

Holland's story airs on 700 Club
by CHARLES RUBBO

Holland’s story, as seen on the 700 Club, is a testament to faith and resilience. Holland was a missionary who faced many challenges in her life, including illness and financial struggles. Despite these obstacles, she remained committed to her ministry and spread the message of love and hope to those around her. Holland’s story is a reminder that even in difficult times, we can find strength and inspiration from our faith.

Quayle remark has validity. What's so funny?

Quayle remark has validity. What's so funny?

Once when I was told that I was funny, I was made to feel like a house built on sand. When the sand is removed, the house is left standing solid.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

As you might imagine, I have been following the Quayle remark in the newspapers and on television. It seems to me that the statement is a valuable contribution to the national debate.

Quayle is a man of great intelligence and integrity. He has a deep understanding of the issues facing the nation today. His statement is a testament to his ability to think clearly and to communicate effectively.

I believe that we should all take a lesson from Quayle's remark. It is a reminder that what we say can have a profound impact on our lives and on the lives of others.

Sincerely,

Outlaws beat Boyd Air

Merchants survive scare, remain tied Pineville, N.C. (AP) -- The Outlaws' 5-0 victory over Boyd Air, 5-2 victory over Boyd Air, and 5-2 victory over Boyd Air, Thursday in Pineland, N.C., have given the Outlaws a 3-0 record and a 2-1 record against Boyd Air.

Outlaws manager Dan Simms said that the Outlaws' success was due to good defensive play and the pitching of their starters.

"We've been blowing teams out of the water, but this is the first time we've really been able to put it all together," Simms said. "Our defense has been solid, and our starters have been doing a great job of keeping the ball out of the plate."
