Texas lottery has problems

By CHARLES McLURE

Despite outright rejection by various state legislators -- either in committee or on the House floor -- the lottery bill running in the Legislature this year has fallen into one of the pockets of politics and is not being given a chance to die.

Two and a half days after the lottery opened in Panola County, there were no winners for the $2.50 per game, each of which consists of a $100 scratch-off ticket and a $200 scratch-off ticket.

And in the last two weeks of sales,
the lottery has lost $5,000,000 in sales.

So far this is the only tip of the lottery iceberg in Panola County. It is possible that sales on scratch-off tickets will continue to decline as consumers learn that the lottery was not worth the risk.

CISD fares better than most

Four students don’t walk

Out of 150 graduating seniors at Conroe High School, only four students did not receive their diplomas on time. This is a significant improvement over previous years, where more than 20 percent of students were absent.

CISD officials credit their efforts to ensure that all students have the opportunity to graduate on time. They have worked closely with students and families to identify any obstacles and develop strategies to overcome them.

Perot is embodiment of frustration with politics

Folks are sick of status quo

I am a firm believer in the necessity of the individual citizen standing up to the establishment. It seems like no matter how much progress is being made, the establishment always manages to hold us back.

I am frustrated with the way things are being run. It seems like the only people who are making any progress are those who are willing to take a stand.

I am tired of being told what to do. I want to be able to make my own decisions and have a say in the world around me.

I believe in the American dream, but it seems like that dream is becoming more and more out of reach for the average person.

I am tired of being told that change is impossible. I believe that anything is possible if we are willing to work hard for it.

I am frustrated with the way the Establishment is handling things. It seems like they are more concerned with preserving their power than actually serving the people.

I believe that the only way to make a change is to stand up and fight for it. If we don't, we will continue to be held back by the Establishment.

I am tired of being told that I am not qualified to make decisions. I believe in the power of the individual and I am willing to stand up and make my voice heard.

I am tired of being told that the Establishment is the only way to go. I believe in the power of the people and I am willing to fight for a better future.

I am tired of being told that change is impossible. I believe that anything is possible if we are willing to work hard for it.

Chits send Regulators down

Merchants take lead in softball

After building a 9-5 lead in the second inning, Lyons Museum for the Lyons Regulators managed to hold off the 9-6 lead of the Lyons Museum, winning 9-6. The Lyons Regulators' lead was cut in half to 9-5 in the fifth inning by the Lyons Museum. However, the Lyons Museum was unable to erase the deficit, and Lyons Museum was able to hold on for the victory.

Carriage Open Softball

Batters for both teams struggled throughout the game, and neither team was able to hit the ball effectively. The Lyons Regulators managed to score a run in the fifth inning, but the Lyons Museum was able to hold on for the win, ultimately finishing with a score of 9-6.

Filmmaker blasts small screen's narrow view

TOM JONES (aired)

In an interview with "Entertainment Tonight," director Mike Figgis says he was "terribly disappointed" with the adaptation of his film "O Lucky Man!" for television. Figgis directed the 1985 film, which starred Tim Roth and was based on the novel by John Fowles. The TV version, which aired on HBO on June 13, was criticized for its "bland" portrayal of the character of Mr. Fowles.

Filmmaker blasts small screen's narrow view

The director of the film "Maurice," Michael Radford, was also critical of the adaptation of his work for television. "I think the problem is that television is too narrow-minded," he told a reporter. "The audience for television is too small to appreciate the complexity of my work."
A new face, but a familiar one.
