Community saddened by tragedy

Coppell Independent School District this week mourned the loss of transportation director, Mrs. Sybil Ritter, who was killed in a traffic accident in the area.

Ritter, 57, left behind her with Bruce, Peter, David, and their four sons and daughters, in addition to a host of friends. Funeral services were held at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church.

"The district lost a great and valuable member, and generally had a good friend," said Fraddy. As

RRC ruling has problems

Before this week, Texas Railroad Commissioner Robert W. King had denied a request by the Carriage Cove Valley Corp. for the authority to construct a pipeline that would transport natural gas from the coast to Dallas, bringing an end to the long-running dispute over the pipeline's route.

"The pipeline was not needed and would not have been economical," said King, who ruled that the company did not have the funds to construct the pipeline.

The decision was hailed by environmentalists and residents of the area who had opposed the pipeline, as well as by the Texas Railroad Commission, which had previously ruled against the project.

Although this week's rains may have stopped the construction efforts of the Eagle River Basin project, Texas U.S. 390 between Carriage Cove and White Oak Creek, the company continued to work on the project.

"We're still working on the project, and we're hoping to have the project completed by the end of the month," said a company spokesperson.

The company has been working on the project for several months, and has been met with opposition from several residents who live in the area.

Although the project is still ongoing, it is expected to be completed by the end of the month.

Donations still being sought

Currently, donations continue from Hurricane Harvey victims in the $3.5 billion range and the damage was estimated to be $100 billion. The funds raised are now earmarked for the rebuilding and recovery of homes, businesses, and communities affected by the storm. The impact on Pearland and the surrounding area was significant, with many homes and businesses destroyed or damaged. The community has come together to support those in need, with donations ranging from clothing to household items.

Are politicians color blind?
Deficit remains national plague

Politicians must be color blind when it comes to the deficit, but the public is not. As the government continues to rack up debt, it is increasingly difficult to make the case for tax cuts and spending increases. The deficit is a critical issue that needs to be addressed, and it requires a comprehensive approach that includes both revenue and expenditure measures.

Violent crime increasing

This is not only affecting residents but also tourists and visitors. The city officials are working on strategies to combat this issue, and the community is also coming together to support each other.
