Panola College prepares for new laws
Hughes proposes handicapped access plan

Panola College's Board of Trustees formally approved appointment of Michael R. Hughes as the college's new president. Hughes was previously the interim president at Odessa College.

The board met in special session Thursday to consider the recommendation of the college's search committee, which interviewed four finalists. Hughes was selected from a pool of 35 candidates who applied for the position.

Hughes said he is excited about the opportunity to lead Panola College, which has approximately 5,000 students.

"I'm looking forward to working with the faculty, staff, and students to continue the college's mission of providing a quality education," Hughes said. "I believe in the mission of Panola College and I am committed to ensuring that all students have access to a high-quality education.

Hughes will begin his duties as president on July 1.

The board also approved the appointment of Terri Scoggins as vice president for finance and administration. Scoggins will start her new position on June 1.

Panola College's Board of Trustees has also approved the establishment of a new Center for Academic Success.

"The center will provide support and resources for students who need assistance in achieving academic success," said Dr. Russell Martin, chair of the board of trustees. "This is an important step in our commitment to student success.

The center will offer tutoring, academic advising, and other services to help students succeed.

Panola College continues to grow and expand its programs and services to meet the needs of its students and the community.

PC examining energy plan

Panola College's Board of Trustees has approved a proposal to examine energy options and strategies for the campus. The board approved the plan during its meeting Thursday.

"We are committed to finding ways to reduce our energy costs and improve our sustainability," said Dr. Russell Martin, chair of the board of trustees.

The energy plan will be included in the college's capital improvement plan.

"This is a step forward in our commitment to being a green campus," said Dr. Martin.

The energy plan will be reviewed by the board of trustees annually.

Beckville center still needs funds

The Beckville Junior High School still needs funds to complete the construction of the new center.

"We have raised some money, but we still need to do more," said Dr. Martin.

The new center will provide more space for students and improve the learning environment.

"We are working hard to raise the remaining funds," said Dr. Martin.

Panola College is seeking donations to help fund the construction of the new center.

"We appreciate the support of our community," said Dr. Martin.

The new center will be dedicated in the fall.

City applies for two grants

The City of Commerce is applying for two grants to support its programs and initiatives.

The city is applying for a grant to support its economic development programs and initiatives. The grant will provide funding to support the development of new businesses and the expansion of existing businesses.

The city is also applying for a grant to support its transportation programs and initiatives. The grant will provide funding to support the improvement of city streets and the expansion of the city's transportation network.

The city is also applying for a grant to support its parks and recreation programs.

"These grants will help support the city's economic development, transportation, and parks and recreation programs," said Mayor B. C. Hopson.

The city will be notified of the grant decisions in the coming weeks.

Register by Oct. 4 for November election

The deadline to register to vote for the November election is Oct. 4.

"We encourage everyone to register to vote," said City Clerk Mary Johnson.

"Registering to vote is an important way to participate in our democracy.

"You can register to vote online at the Secretary of State's website or in person at the County Clerk's office.

"Registering to vote is easy and it's a way to make your voice heard."

PERSPECTIVES

Why not care for a change?
What a novel idea!

It was just a few years ago that the first modernized school opened in our town. This year it was the first year that the school board decided to phase out the old buildings and move everything into the new one. The new school was beautiful, with large classrooms and state-of-the-art technology. It was a great day for our community.

But now, just a few years later, the school board is proposing to move everything back into the old buildings. The new school has only been in operation for a few years, and already they are thinking about closing it down.

What is going on? Is this a reflection of the challenges facing public education today? Is it a sign of the times, when everything seems to be changing so quickly? Or is it just a case of bad planning?

I think it is a combination of all these things. The school board is facing a lot of pressure to save money, and the old buildings are cheaper to maintain. But at the same time, they want to ensure that our children are getting the best education possible.

This is a tough decision, and one that I think we all need to think about carefully. We need to make sure that our schools are serving the needs of our communities, and not just saving money.

Let's take a step back and think about what we want for our children. Do we want them to have the best possible education, or do we just want to save money? We need to be honest with ourselves and our leaders, and make the tough decisions that are necessary for our children's future.

Five vie for 1992 homecoming queen crown

By KERENZA BRENES

For many, the old tradition of homecoming week is a time of excitement and fun. But for others, it is the time of year to choose a new homecoming queen. With the election of Lisa Thompson and Keri Smith as the new homecoming court, the tradition of selecting a new queen continues. The election process involves several steps, including interviews, speeches, and votes. The final selection is made by a panel of judges who then announce the winner. The new queen will serve as an important role model for the school, and her reign will mark the beginning of a new chapter for the homecoming celebration. The new queen will be responsible for organizing events and representing the school at various events throughout the year. The selection of a new homecoming queen is a significant event for the school, and it is one that is eagerly awaited by students and faculty alike. With the election of Lisa Thompson and Keri Smith, the homecoming celebration will continue to be a source of pride and joy for the school community.
