Local educators angry with Austin's inaction

By CHARLES McCLURE

Erik H. Dorsett, who is about to order the Texas school board to close some schools in Panola County over budgetary and personnel concerns, said he was about to file suit against Austin's inaction and inaction by the state's education board. Dorsett said he had been in negotiations with Austin over the issue for the past week, yet another special session in Austin had failed to enact a constitutional amendment that would have permitted sharing local property taxes for school continuation.

"I don't understand," he said. "We are working on all of these issues, but they just don't see it similarly."

Dorsett claimed that he had been working on a constitutional amendment for school continuation, but that the state has not acted to make it happen.

"All of these issues are still very serious," he said. "We need to make sure that our schools continue to operate."

Bust finds marijuana cache

Drug dealers may come up with new ideas for concealing narcotics, but local law enforcement agencies still rely on the same methods to combat drug trafficking. Monday morning, agents of the Panola County Sheriff's Office conducted a bust of a hideout in a rural area, arresting two suspects and recovering a large cache of marijuana and other paraphernalia.

The bust was the result of a联合 operation involving the Panola County Sheriff's Office, the Eighteenth Judicial District Drug Task Force, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

The suspects, identified as a 19-year-old man and a 21-year-old woman, were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. The investigation is ongoing, and additional arrests may be forthcoming.

Clayton names top fireman

Trust fund started for future needs

The Clayton Volunteer Fire Department has established a trust fund to support future needs of the depart- ment. The fund was established to provide financial stability and ensure the continued operation of the department in the future.

The fund is open to all members of the department and is designed to support the department's ongoing operational costs, as well as any unforeseen expenses or emergencies that may arise. Contributions can be made through the department's website or by contacting the department directly.

CHS students turn art into business

By JUDY NIECE

Making a living through art has become a reality for CHS students who have found success with their artwork. The students, who are part of the CHS art program, have been able to turn their passion for art into a business.

"I've been looking for a way to make money through my art," said one student. "I decided to start selling my artwork at local art shows and events. It's been a great experience so far. People really appreciate my work and are willing to pay for it."

Another student, who has been selling her artwork for several years, said, "I've been able to turn my passion into a business. I've been able to pay for my education through my artwork and I love being able to make a living doing something I love."

The students have been successful in turning their art into business, and they encourage others to follow their example. "If you have a passion for something, don't be afraid to turn it into a business," said one student. "You never know what you can do if you don't try."

Dogs in hot water and other lessons

When I was a little girl, I wanted to be a nurse. This was before I wanted to be a teacher. Then I wanted to be a veterinarian. But now, I don't really care what I want to be, as long as I can make a living through writing. I spend my life trying to figure out how to make a living, and I'm not even sure I'm doing it right.

I have a dog named Max. He's not a great dog, but he's mine, and I love him. I once read that dogs are the best friends a person can have. I disagree. Dogs are the worst friends a person can have.

I've been told that dogs are dangerous and should be kept away from children. But I don't believe that. Dogs are just like people. They have their good days and their bad days. Some people are just plain bad, but they're not all bad.

I have a friend who owns a dog. He says that dogs are a big responsibility. He's right. They are. But they're also fun. I like the way they wag their tails and the way they look at me when they want to go outside.

I'm not sure what's going to happen when I die. I don't think I'm going to go to Heaven or Hell. But I do think I'm going to see Max again. I hope so.

Our readers write—

Dear Editor,

I recently read an article in the newspaper about the dog that attacked a child in the neighborhood. I was shocked. I've never heard of such a thing happening before.

I think it's important to remember that dogs are animals and should be treated with respect. We should not judge them based on their breed or age. Each dog is an individual and deserves our attention.

I would like to suggest that we all take responsibility for our pets. We should ensure that they are well-behaved and that they are not a danger to others. We should also make sure that they are treated with love and care.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor,

I hear that you are planning to publish an article about the dangers of owning a dog. I disagree. I think that dogs are great companions and that they should be encouraged to be owned.

I own a dog and I love it. He's not perfect, but he's mine. I take good care of him and I make sure that he's well-behaved. I think that dogs can be great additions to a family and that they can bring a lot of joy.

I would like to suggest that you focus on the positive aspects of owning a dog rather than the negative. We should all be responsible pet owners and make sure that our pets are treated well.

Sincerely,

Burandt speaks to Lions on handicapped camps

By LADLA WOOLI
Lions have an excellent opportunity to help the handicapped children with a visit to the Foundation of the Lions Clubs International, which has headquarters in Chicago. The foundation is a non-profit organization that helps handicapped children in many ways, including camps for handicapped children.

The foundation is seeking support from the Lions Clubs in the area to help provide a camp for handicapped children. The camp will provide a safe and secure environment for children with disabilities to learn and grow. The camp will be staffed by qualified professionals who will work with the children to help them achieve their goals.

The Lions Clubs are encouraged to support this camp by providing financial assistance or by volunteering their time and resources. The foundation has a long history of working with the Lions Clubs and has a great appreciation for the support they provide.

The camp will be held at a location in the area that is accessible and safe for handicapped children. The facility will be equipped with appropriate accommodations to meet the needs of the children.

The Lions Clubs are encouraged to get involved in this important cause. The camp will provide a valuable learning experience for the children and an opportunity for the Lions Clubs to make a difference in the lives of handicapped children.

To learn more about this camp and how you can support it, please contact the Foundation of the Lions Clubs International at (312) 326-6000. They will be happy to provide you with more information and answer any questions you may have.
