Legislature facing uphill battle

Said sad tax says system bad in need of restructuring

By CHARLES MACLEOD

Editor

Texas legislators again faced defeat in the midst of another budgetary shortfall.

Current meeting in regular session, legislators are facing a deficit of $2 billion-M.

If the current session fails, it could lead to a special session, requiring the governor to call a special legislative session, for the fall.

If the special session fails, the budget would be cut by $2 billion, a drastic move that could lead to a shutdown of state operations.

Legislators are working to pass a budget that will be accepted by the governor, but the process is slow and complex.

For more information about the budget and its impact on Texas, please check with your local representatives and the Texas Legislative Council.

Highway department asked to check out bumpy road

Executive order, heavy traffic and exhaust products have contributed to the bumpy road problem.

Many residents have complained about the condition of the road, saying they are forced to drive slowly.

The Texas Department of Transportation is reviewing the road and will provide a report on the road's condition and any necessary repairs.

For more information about the bumpy road problem, please contact the Texas Department of Transportation.

MLK day has busy agenda
