Our readers write—

Dear Editor,

I have been reading — with mixed emotions — the series of articles on the history of our area by Dr. John H. Rinehart. I am a native of this area and have been following the series with great interest. The articles have provided valuable insights into the history of our community and have helped me appreciate the heritage that we have inherited.

Thank you for the opportunity to share my thoughts on this topic. I look forward to reading more articles from Dr. Rinehart in the future.

Yours truly,

The Sheriff's Report

Many of you who have visited the area over the weekend were in the background when new developments required a new stop in the fire control. A quick response was made, and the fire was under control. One person was injured, but there were no fatalities. The investigation continues, and we appreciate your patience.

Back-to-back titles a record

Dawgs guard Bucs

Carson Vonnegut's (Junior) three-pointer in the final seconds of the game against the University of South Carolina Gamecocks on Sunday, November 15, 2023, propelled the Georgia Bulldogs to an 81-79 victory in the final game of the annual Georgia-Georgia Tech basketball tournament. Vonnegut's shot was the second in back-to-back games for the Bulldogs, who had defeated the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets in the opening game of the tournament on Saturday, November 14, 2023, also by a score of 81-79.

Fillies hold off Paris in 81-77 thriller
Norris, Gordon take over overtime

Parke – Kelly Norris’ only goal of the second half put the game in regulation play and then the Fillies pulled away and secured a 6-point win over the Lady Mustangs.

The Fillies (6-3) came out with a 9-0 lead and never looked back, but Paris (0-9) fought back with a 12-2 run to go ahead 11 after only 2:22 of regulation. The game was tied at 46-46 with 22 seconds left in the third quarter.

The Fillies’ defense held the Lady Mustangs to just 8 points in the first half.

Communication and teamwork were the key to filling up the day with points.

The Fillies will play their next home game on Saturday, February 11, when they take on the Lady Mustangs.

Homers help Panola win, 3-2

Huber holds Suns down; Ross, Hobson and Hardt crack tutors

The Panthers (4-0) were led by three home runs, including two from Hardt, and a strong pitching performance by Huber to help them secure their third win of the season.

Huber pitched a complete game, allowing just one hit and striking out 5 batters. He also walked one batter.

The Panthers are now 3-2 in conference play.
