College slapped with fine

By LAURA NEISH

Bankrupting problems that plagued Purdue College in the past have reached a federal fine of $325,000.

The fine was assessed to the college by the U.S. Department of Education as a result of the college's failure to document financial aid programs properly.

The problems, as identified by the college, include a lack of documentation required by the federal government for students receiving financial aid and failure to report changes in attendance status of students.

The college, which had been operating without a暴ting financial aid programs since 1994, was required to pay the fine.

Sheriff readsies for 9-1-1

The Porter County Sheriff's Office has implemented a new emergency communication system.

The system features a dedicated 9-1-1 number for faster response times in emergencies.

The system also includes a dispatch center that communicates directly with police, fire, and ambulance services.

City examines recycling plan

The city is considering a new recycling plan to reduce waste and promote sustainability.

The plan includes curbside collection of recyclables and the establishment of recycling centers around the city.

Final closure of the Cur-Page/Lancaster landfill is imminent.

The landfill has been operational for over 30 years and has reached its capacity.

The closure of the landfill will have environmental implications, as it will reduce the amount of waste sent to landfills in the area.

THANK GOD FOR THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT OF THE GARDEN CLUBS

Garden clubs have come a long way from their original purpose of merely discussing flower care and pets, for they have become very diversified in many ways. They can provide the benefits of horticulture projects, often with related contests. They sponsor tree-planting ceremonies in honor of special occasions. They engage in fresh-cut flower competitions. They provide education, such as tree watering and construction of drought-tolerant gardens. They encourage and sponsor wildlife preservation and appreciation of the beauty and nature of God created. Attend your Church of Christ and thank God for those dedicated women--and men--too--and we'll help you to please their endeavors. You may well find your own community a better place to live by doing so, because of the efforts of your local garden club.

The Panola Watchmen

A&M moms will hold drawing

A&M families and A&M moms meet each Friday to hold drawings for students. The money raised will be used to support the A&M families. The drawings will be held in the main campus area, and the families will meet in the cafeteria. The families will be playing volleyball and having fun. The Panola Watchmen, a local newspaper, is covering the event. If you are interested in attending, you can find more information at the A&M website or contact the A&M family association.

Baker will hear cases

Holly Baker, a local attorney, will hear cases in the Panola County courthouse. The courthouse is located on the corner of Baker and Elm streets in the downtown area. Holly Baker is a well-respected attorney in the community, and she is known for her professionalism and dedication to her clients. The courthouse is open from 8 am to 5 pm, and the public is invited to attend the cases. If you have any questions, you can contact the courthouse at 123-456-7890.

Arrests

A local man was arrested for drug possession in the Panola County courthouse. The man was caught with a small amount of marijuana in his possession. The man was released on bond and is scheduled to appear in court in two weeks. The courthouse is located on the corner of Baker and Elm streets in the downtown area. If you have any questions, you can contact the courthouse at 123-456-7890.

String of burglaries resolved by guilty plea

A local man has been arrested for a series of burglaries in the Panola County area. The man was caught after a neighbor saw him entering a house and calling the police. The man was arrested on the spot and was later charged with burglary. The man was found guilty and sentenced to community service. If you have any questions, you can contact the courthouse at 123-456-7890.
