Chapman will speak at Beckville dedication

In Beckville, this Saturday's dedication of a storage membrane pressure. Chapman discusses the need for opposition to the storage membrane pressure and for consideration of alternatives. Chapman argues that the storage membrane pressure is insufficient and that alternatives should be considered.

Lobbyists wins honors again

By LAURA NEGUI

Championed the use of salt water as a way to store energy, namely through the use of a membrane pressure. This approach is considered to be a more efficient and cost-effective method compared to traditional storage solutions. The use of salt water as an energy storage medium is gaining traction due to its potential for scalability and sustainability.

Two schools excel in UIL competition

Two local schools excelled in a variety of academic competitions at the recent District 13-6A UIL Region 13-6A academic championships. The schools were recognized for their outstanding performances in various academic disciplines, including mathematics, science, and fine arts. The achievements highlight the dedication and hard work of the students, as well as the support of their respective communities.
