Recapture rejected by electorate

Paradise County voters echoed the sentiments of the rest of the state, as local votes overwhelmingly rejected all three proposed constitutional amendments based on the ballot of the day, election officials announced Tuesday. The amendments, defeated by a margin of 3,137 to 1,983, established a process of proposals to amend the constitution, which would have qualified funding for state schools by redistricting local property taxes.

Propositions 3 and 9, both defeated by 57.49%, would have resulted in sales taxes on utilities or services. Propositions 1 and 9 were defeated by 57.49% and 56.96%, respectively.

Disappointed with the results, local voters expressed their thoughts on the outcome.

"I think the amendment was a good idea," said a local resident.

"I'm disappointed," another voter said. "I thought the state was going in the right direction on this issue."

Panola Express staff wins awards
Honors awarded to students

The first Panola Express staff - the educational paper of Panola College - has been awarded honors for its work.

The staff received recognition for their efforts in writing and editing the college's newspaper. The awards included:

- First place in the category of "Best Editorial Page" for the Fall 2022 issue.
- Second place in the category of "Best Feature Story" for the Winter 2022 issue.

The staff members of the Panola Express team are:

- Editor-in-Chief: John Smith
- Managing Editor: Sarah Brown
- News Editor: Emily Anderson
- Sports Editor: Michael Davis

These awards are a testament to the hard work and dedication of the Panola Express staff. Their efforts not only provide valuable information to the Panola College community but also serve as a model for other student publications.

The Panola Express is published bi-weekly at Panola College. Students interested in joining the staff should contact the advisor, Professor Jane Doe, at jdoe@panola.edu.
Food seminar on tap May 13

The Panelos Watchman
