Rains flood most county roads

For the Texas coast, Arisves may have only been a temporary storm, but for Panola County, it was a flood disaster. Winds of up to 60 mph, heavy rains, and high river levels made many areas unlivable.

Road and bridge crews began working Sunday evening, pumping up floodwaters and blocking off washed-out culverts.

By Monday morning, many roads were underwater, and many more remained as waterways that we could not enter. Meanwhile, Panola County Judge John Cardwell said the county would take a close eye on the situation.

Panola County Judge Lonnie Brown said it would take about a month for some roads to dry up.

Contest celebrates birthday

As of July, The Panola Watchman, the oldest continuing business in the county, will celebrate its 130th birthday.

The newspaper is holding a contest where you could win $50 — if you possess the oldest Panola Watchman.

The editor, in his search for the oldest issue of the newspaper, discovered that the newspaper had been in business for 130 years.

The newspaper plans to announce the winner of the contest in the next issue.

The newspaper is giving away a free copy of a 1963 issue of the newspaper to the winner.

The contest is open to anyone who is 18 years of age or older.

PC board meets...

Trustees employ Baldree, Johnson

The board decided to give him a contract extension for two years.

A budget amendment to increase the college's budget by $30,000 was also approved.

City examining police station options

The city of Panola is examining police station options and may bring in outside consultants to assist.

The main problem facing the city is the need for a new police station.

According to a study by Gary Troxler and Associates, the city of Panola has a population of 2,500 people and needs a new police station.

The study recommended that the new police station be located near the current station.

The study also recommended that the new police station be built by the city of Panola.

Calling Dr. Warren...and Dr. Warren
Couple prepares for medical careers

BY LADY D. WORTH
Most people would envy a couple who met in high school and got married, but that is exactly what Dr. Kathleen Warren and Dr. Dan Warren did. "They fell in love in 1956 at Carthage High School and got married in 1958," said Dr. Kathleen Warren. Together, they are now preparing for careers in medicine.

Dr. Kathleen Warren is the lead for the Global Health Program at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston. Dr. Dan Warren is an orthopedic surgeon at Houston Methodist Hospital.

When asked what advice they would give to couples who are just starting out, the Warrens both agreed on one thing: "Communication is key," said Dr. Dan Warren. "It's important to keep open lines of communication and work through any issues as they arise."

The Warrens met while playing tennis, Dr. Kathleen Warren said. "He was a good tennis player and I was not," she joked.

Dr. Kathleen Warren, who will begin her new position in January, said she is excited to start a new chapter in her career. "I'm looking forward to new experiences and challenges," she said.

The Warrens currently live in Houston and have two children, Derek and Allison. They also have two grandchildren.

"I will miss Dan here in Carthage," said Dr. Kathleen Warren. "But I'm excited to see what's ahead in Houston."

Dr. Dan Warren said he is looking forward to spending more time with his family in Houston. "I'm excited to have more time to spend with my kids and grandkids," he said.

The Warrens encourage any young couples who are interested in pursuing careers in medicine to pursue their dreams. "It's a challenging but rewarding field," said Dr. Dan Warren. "It's important to have a passion for it and to be willing to work hard to achieve your goals."

The Warrens are grateful for the many friends and family members who have supported them throughout their journey. "We couldn't have done it without you," said Dr. Kathleen Warren. "Thank you for your love and support."
