As the 9-1-1 system goes on-line, county officials say they are ready.

The county’s 9-1-1 system has been in place for several years, but it will now officially be operational.

The system, which is based on a computerized database, allows emergency personnel to access a person’s address and other information when they call 9-1-1.

Panola Players incorporate community pride

Students find value in learning

By CAROLINE SMITH

Panola College's youth drama group, the Panola Players,3 has been a staple of the campus community for years. The group, which aims to provide students with a platform to express themselves creatively, has recently undergone some changes.

"The Panola Players is a great way for students to get involved on campus," said Dr. Steve B. Martin, vice president for academic affairs.

Panola Players' focus this year has been on community involvement. "We've been trying to reach out to the community and get more students involved," said Jennifer Ford, a senior theater major.

Panola Players will be performing "The Importance of Being Earnest," a classic play by Oscar Wilde. "We're excited to bring this play to the community," said Ford. "It's a fun and light-hearted play that everyone can enjoy."

Prescription: A good dose of simplicity

Some say there are so many old folks in town that the local pharmacist is the one who knows best what they need. Others say it's the doctor who's really the one who knows best what they need. But no one can deny that a lot of people are looking for some way to simplify their lives.

The modern world is full of distractions and complexities. From social media to work demands, it can be overwhelming. One way to simplify is to focus on what really matters. This might mean spending less time on things that don't bring joy and more time on things that do.

There are many ways to simplify your life. One way is to declutter your home. Get rid of things you don't need or use. Another way is to simplify your schedule. Set priorities and say no to things that don't align with your goals.

At the end of the day, a good dose of simplicity can help you feel more in control and at peace. It's a reminder that sometimes less is more.

Campus violence epidemic concern

Legislators look at unrest in schools

In recent years, there has been a growing concern about violence in schools. Some states have responded by passing laws that require schools to have a certain number of security guards.

While these laws may help protect students, there is concern that they could also lead to over-punishment of students. There have been incidents where students have been suspended for minor offenses.

It's important to have strong measures in place to protect students, but it's also important to ensure that those measures are fair and just.

Health legislation enacted

Gov. Ann Richards recently signed into law a sweeping health-care reform bill. The legislation, which includes provisions to expand Medicaid and increase access to affordable health care, represents a significant step forward in the fight for health care reform.

The legislation also includes provisions to increase funding for children's health care, including a new program to provide health insurance to uninsured children.

The governor has said that this legislation is a priority and that she is committed to ensuring that all Texans have access to quality health care.

Notices of change at Panola College

Panola College has announced several changes to its facilities and programs.

- The new gym, which has been under construction for the past year, is scheduled to open in the fall.
- The library's hours have been extended to include evenings.
- The business department is offering a new course in entrepreneurship.
- The art department is hosting a new exhibit featuring works by local artists.

Registration to be held at Panola College

Panola College will be holding a registration event on August 1st. The event will include opportunities to register for classes, talk with financial aid advisors, and meet with faculty members.

This is a great opportunity for students to get information about classes they're interested in and to speak with professionals who can help guide them through the registration process.
