Tax appeal procedures outlined

The tax assessor reviewer process is designed to provide a fair process for property owners. However, there are specific procedures that must be followed in order to appeal a property assessment. These procedures are outlined in the Texas Property Tax Code and are as follows:

1. The property owner must file a notice of appeal with the county appraiser within 30 days of the mailing date of the notice of valuation appeal. The notice of appeal must state the owner's name and address, the property address, and the reasons for the appeal.

2. The property owner will be notified of a hearing date by the county appraiser. The hearing will be held at the county courthouse and will be conducted by a hearing officer appointed by the county appraiser. The hearing officer will hear the evidence presented by both parties and will issue a decision.

3. If the property owner is not satisfied with the decision of the hearing officer, they may appeal the decision to the county appraisal review board (ARB). The ARB is a three-member board appointed by the county judge. The ARB will review the appeal and issue a decision.

4. If the property owner is still not satisfied with the decision of the ARB, they may appeal the decision to the county court. The county court will hear the appeal and issue a decision.

5. If the property owner is still not satisfied with the decision of the county court, they may appeal the decision to the state tax court. The state tax court is a judicial body that reviews decisions made by the county court.
