PC students start petition for stop light

Pearson College students have staged a petition drive in the hopes of making West Pearsons stop light safe. In the wake of a serious pedestrian accident involving a Pearson student and a West Pearsons van, student representatives met with Student Affairs to discuss the possibility of installing a stop light at the corner of West Pearsons Road and Old Myron Road. This corner has been a frequent site of accidents involving students and pedestrians.

"We want to make sure that this corner is safe for all students," said one of the petition organizers. "We've had too many close calls, and we need something to prevent accidents from happening.

According to the Student Affairs office, the college has been working with the city to have a stop light installed at the corner. However, there is no timeline for when this will happen.

"We're hoping to have a stop light installed as soon as possible," said a Student Affairs representative. "We're working with the city to make sure that this is a priority."
Texas Guardsmen travel to Fort Knox

New training featured in simulated warfare

Hundreds of Texas Guardsmen from the 13th Engineer Battalion, headquartered in Austin, were expected to arrive in Fort Knox, Ky., for a two-week training program starting on Oct. 5. The unit, which is part of the Texas National Guard, is preparing for a deployment to Iraq in the near future.

According to Capt. Stephen J. Brinkley, commander of the 13th Engineer Battalion, the training will focus on combat engineering skills, including mine detection and neutralization, bridge construction, and route clearing.

Brinkley said that the training is essential to ensure that the unit is fully prepared for the challenges it will face in Iraq. "The training will help our soldiers develop the skills and knowledge they need to complete their mission successfully," he said.

Tigua tribe casino gambling issue undecided

Voting fraud under investigation

By GLADYS MILLER

Gladys Miller reached a plea bargain agreement to plead guilty to one count of voting fraud and forgoing $2.5 million in lottery winnings.

The agreement filed in U.S. District Court in El Paso, Texas, on Monday, will result in Miller receiving a sentence of between 18 and 24 months in federal prison, followed by three years of supervised release.

Under the terms of the agreement, Miller will admit that she cast two votes in the Nov. 3 election, one for herself and one for her husband, Tony Miller.

The vote was for the Tigua tribe casino gambling issue, Proposition 4, which was defeated by a narrow margin.

The agreement also states that Miller will forfeit $2.5 million in lottery winnings, which she claimed as income on her tax returns.

In a statement, U.S. Attorney Zachary Fardon said, "This plea agreement reflects the defendant's plea of guilt and her cooperation with the government in this investigation."

Gladys Miller, who had been a Tigua tribe member for several years, was charged with voting fraud in October 2020.

The Tigua tribe has owned and operated casinos in Texas and New Mexico for decades, but its expansion plans have been controversial.

In recent years, the tribe has been involved in a lawsuit against the state of New Mexico, seeking to open a casino in that state.

The tribe has also been fighting over gambling rights with the state of Texas, which has its own casino industry.

Gladys Miller's case is one of many that have been filed in the U.S. District Court in El Paso, involving allegations of voting fraud.

Lawsuits and investigations have been ongoing for several years, with various tribes and governments alleging that votes were cast in fraudulent ways.

The tribe has denied any wrongdoing and has said that its voting process is secure.

The Tigua tribe has also said that it plans to continue to pursue its expansion plans, despite the ongoing legal battles.

In a statement, the tribe said, "We remain committed to expanding our gaming operations and to providing gaming revenue to our Members and to the local community."

The tribe has said that it will continue to work with the state of Texas to ensure that its plans move forward.

The Tigua tribe has said that it is committed to defending its rights, and that it will continue to fight for its interests.

The tribe has also said that it is committed to ensuring that its members are protected, and that they are included in the decision-making process.

Dogs have proven they can turn it on
Carthage jv needs consistency to win crown

The Dogs have finally arrived. Carthage's jv football team, after a slow start to the season, has been turning the corner and showing signs of improvement. The Dogs are now on a winning streak and are looking to solidify their place at the top of their division.

"The Dogs have been working hard in practice," said Coach Johnson. "They've been showing up on game day and bringing their best effort. We're really proud of them and we're looking forward to seeing what they can do in the upcoming games."

Carthage jv needs consistency to win crown

Consistency is key for the Dogs. They have shown flashes of brilliance throughout the season, but have yet to put it all together in a complete game. Coach Johnson emphasized the importance of consistency in his pre-game talk to the team.

"We need to play a full 48 minutes," he said. "We can't give up points in the fourth quarter and expect to win. If we want to win the conference, we need to be consistent every week."

The Dogs are currently sitting at 3-2 in the conference, with two losses against tough opponents. They face a tough road ahead, with games against some of the top teams in the division.

Freshmen are close to being good team

The freshmen on the Carthage football team are showing signs of improvement. While they may not have the experience of the varsity players, they are working hard to improve.

"The freshmen have been working hard," said Coach Smith. "They're learning the game and getting better every week. They have a lot of potential and I'm excited to see what they can do in the future."
