Texas Utilities to cut 70 in local force

In a March 2 memorandum to employees, the company's top executive said the cuts occurred in a "difficult economic climate." The cuts, affecting a total of 120 employees in the Panola area, were made in accordance with a corporate-wide reduction in force plan.

Locally, however, Martin Creek Lake was among the most visible areas affected, as several employees were laid off. The closures included maintenance, 14 electrical maintenance, 14 electrical maintenance, 7 electrical maintenance, and 7 electrical maintenance employees.

Woods Community sees need for fire station planned

Woods Community must find a way to finance a new fire station, according to members of the local volunteer fire department. The department has been operating without a permanent fire station for several years, but now they are facing the reality of being without one.

The department has been operating from a small shed on the edge of town, but the shed is not adequate for the growing needs of the community. The department is now seeking contributions from local businesses and residents to help finance the new fire station.

Gold Unlimited operation put on hold

Gold Unlimited's operations were put on hold after the company was accused of violating federal laws. The company was facing a $5 million fine, which has now been reduced to $3 million.

The company was accused of violating the Gold Unlimited Act, which prohibits the company from operating unless it has a valid permit.

Grant for new cop may not be good deal

by SHERIDAN KENDALL

A grant, approved and awarded to College Station for one police officer, may not be the best for the city. The grant is designed to fund two new police officers, but there are concerns about the ability of the new hires to fit into the current police force.

According to the grant, $150,000 will be used to fund the new positions. The grant is funded by the state and will be matched by the city. However, there are concerns about the ability of the new hires to fit into the current police force.

According to state law, police officers must complete a two-year police academy. The new hires will be required to complete the academy before they can be sworn in.

The grant is expected to be awarded to College Station in October. The city will receive the funds in January and will have until June to hire the new officers.

City looks gift horse in mouth

A recent article discussing the grant for a new police officer has raised concerns about whether the grant is good for the city.

The grant is designed to fund two new police officers, but there are concerns about the ability of the new hires to fit into the current police force.

According to state law, police officers must complete a two-year police academy. The new hires will be required to complete the academy before they can be sworn in.

The grant is expected to be awarded to College Station in October. The city will receive the funds in January and will have until June to hire the new officers.

Military news

A military operation was launched in the eastern part of the country, targeting an insurgent group in the region. The operation involved a coordinated effort by various military units, with the aim of defeating the enemy and securing the area.

The operation was carried out with precision and planning, ensuring the safety of all personnel involved. The military forces were equipped with the latest technology and were trained to handle such operations effectively.

The operation was successful, leading to the capture of several high-value targets and the destruction of key infrastructure used by the enemy. The operation was conducted in close coordination with the local authorities and was well received by the local population.

The military forces were able to clear the area of the hostile forces and establish a secure environment for the local population. The operation was hailed as a significant victory for the country's armed forces.

The operators were commended for their efforts and the successful completion of the mission. The operation will continue to be monitored closely to ensure the stability of the region and prevent any resurgence of the hostile forces.
