‘Whistle blower’ suit filed by fined county employees

By LAURA NEGER

The censure of the Board of Representatives of the State of Michigan, putting the county in a financial bind, led to a lawsuit by one of its employees.

The lawsuit was filed by Robert G. Smith, a county employee, against the county, alleging that his employment was terminated without adequate notice.

Smith has been employed by the county for over 20 years and has a long history of service. He has been involved in several important projects and has received numerous awards for his contributions.

The lawsuit is seeking damages for wrongful termination and breach of contract.

Teen volunteers helping needy

By SHEFFY KNOX

The Pulpus deputes ruled the Purple Passion Club of the Warren Community with a financial windfall.

The club has been facing financial difficulties in recent months, but with the help of the deputes, the club was able to raise funds to continue its operations.

The deputes held a charity auction, which raised over $10,000 for the club.
