TEC can help laid-off workers

"It was a constructive decision that Mr. TEC made," Mayor Michael J. DiSanto said of the placement of the Matchmaker at Kennedy Plaza. "It will put people back on the job and get them back to their communities."

The Matchmaker, a program run by the TEC, provides employment services and career counseling to people seeking work. The program has been in operation since 1989 and has helped thousands of people find jobs.

"We're here to help people find work and get back on their feet," said Tim Haggard, the Matchmaker's director. "Our goal is to help people find jobs that are right for them and that will allow them to support their families.

The Matchmaker is located in a small building on Kennedy Plaza, which has recently been renovated. The building was previously used as a bank and has been transformed into a modern office space.

"The Matchmaker is a great resource for people who are looking for work," said Elizabeth Johnson, who stopped by the Matchmaker to see what services were available. "I've been out of work for a while and I'm looking to get back on my feet. The Matchmaker has been very helpful and I'm hoping to find a job soon."
