Gathering For National Day of Prayer

Saturday, women will visit polling places across Panola County in a last-minute, all-out effort to cast their votes, according to an official of the Women's Auxiliary of the Catholic church. The women are scheduled to cast about 100 ballots in Panola County, including five in the courthouse and 20 in the Catholic school building.

Local attorney Rick McPherson has cut his birthday celebration short to campaign for state representative. He says he will be the candidate of choice for the November general election.

Pioneer Panola County women: The settling of Clarissa Harlow Bailey

The name of Clarissa Harlow Bailey is familiar to most people who live in Panola County. She was the first woman to settle in the county, and her pioneering spirit and determination have left an indelible mark on the history of the area.

Legend has it that Clarissa came to the area in the late 1830s, after her husband, Henry Bailey, had died. She traveled on foot from Alabama with a small group of settlers and established a settlement near what is now Statesboro.

Clarissa Bailey was known for her hard work and her ability to adapt to the harsh conditions of the new land. She is said to have established a small farm and to have built a home using only materials she could gather and make herself.

Despite the fact that she was a woman, Bailey often found herself in charge of important decisions, such as deciding when the settlers should start their spring planting. This was a crucial time in the year, and the success of the crops depended on the settlers' ability to make the right decisions.

Clarissa Bailey also played a key role in the development of the community. She was known for her hospitality and her willingness to help others. She often hosted gatherings in her home, where she would share her knowledge and skills with others.

Despite the challenges she faced, Clarissa Bailey remained a strong and independent woman. Her legacy lives on in the many ways that she helped to shape the community of Panola County, and her spirit continues to inspire those who come after her.

Davis' retires with few goals unfulfilled

502nd victory caps great coaching career at Panola College

Jude Davis has played the games of baseball with flair of heroes such as Babe Ruth and Sandy Koufax. And once again, Jude Davis is making baseball history. This year, he has surpassed his own mark in the state of Texas by winning his 502nd game. The win came against East Texas Baptist University on April 24th, and it marks the end of a remarkable career that has spanned over four decades.

Davis’ story begins in 1974 when he was named head coach at Panola College. Since then, he has led the bobcats to success both on and off the field. His teams have won numerous championships, including the 1993 and 1994 NAIA Division II titles. Davis is also known for his unwavering dedication to his players, often going above and beyond to ensure their success on and off the field.

In addition to his coaching duties, Davis is also a respected educator, having served as an associate professor of history at Panola College. He has been an influential figure in the Texas baseball community, mentoring countless players who have gone on to successful careers in professional baseball.

Davis’ retirement comes after a career that has been marked by excellence and dedication. He leaves behind a legacy that will be remembered for generations to come. His contributions to Panola College and the sport of baseball will not be forgotten. Congratulations, Jude Davis, on a job well done!

LET'S SIT ON THE FRONT ROW!

Have you ever noticed when we go to church, that most people seem to sit in the back? Maybe it's because we're just self-conscious and would rather mix in with the crowd, yet it seems that those who sit in the front are more likely to participate, while those in the back are more likely to be spectators. Although there is nothing wrong with being a spectator, one does feel a part of an activity when one witnesses it. We can contribute by joining actively in the singing, by giving our full attention to the pastor or preacher, or in any other way that we can.

We walk with God, and God is something that we actively play a role in. We are given the gift of grace calls for an active response on our part. By using and developing our God-given talents, we express our gratitude to him and thereby glorify him.

Agriculture one of economic industries in Panola County

Unusually dry climate have led to a slow start in agriculture across Panola County in 1966. However, thanks to rice, hogs and a few dairy cattle, the area is showing better than usual in Texas. A steady growth across Panola County will gradually show the diversity that is shown in this portion of East Texas. Not unlike other parts of Texas, the local economy depends on production of oil and natural gas, but unlike the area re-gained with rice, Panola County is more heavily linked with production of timber, livestock, milk, chicken eggs and fruits and vegetables.

Agricultural production accounts for about $60 million of the local economic activity annually. Panola County boasts one of the highest production levels in the state for broccoli, cabbage, the majority of which are processed in the county’s largest employer, Texas Ponds.

Two years ago, the county reported almost $30 million in timber sales, $13 million in cotton, $2 million in sugar cane, more than $3 million in cattle and about $4 million in hogs and hogs.

Panola County has almost half a million acres of agricultural land and more than 14,000 producers. Almost 7,000 head of beef and dairy cattle run the countryside.

A string of growing season of 260 days and average rainfall of about 40 inches, coupled with rich, well-drained soil makes a perfect combination for farmers. Agricultural leaders in the county work closely with the county’s extension service, the Panola County Soil Conservation Service and the chamber’s ag committees to see that the agricultural climate in Panola County not only stays healthy, but continues to prosper.

Muravial provides perfect spot to enjoy all recreational sports

With its long sliver of lakes in East Texas, it would be almost expected for one to take Lake Muravial for granted. However, spending just a few hours on the lake shows that an extra day spent off the road.

The lake offers anglers a great opportunity to catch one of the large hogs that take out the roads. The east side of the lake is subject to the heavy rainfall and the water is subject to heavy flooding.

It’s also possible to enjoy a day on the water. The Sabine River and its tributaries supply much of the water for bodies of water in Panola County such as Muravial. The river offers an abundance of crappie, black bass, small bass, catfish and trout. The fishing season is subject to the heavy rainfall and the water is subject to heavy flooding.

Sammy Brown Library important part of community genealogy

Since 1962, the Sammy Brown Library has been a vital resource for community genealogy research. Located at 525 West College, it offers over 300,000 books, magazines, and other resources to help genealogists delve into their family history.

The library is open Tuesday through Saturday, and members have access to a variety of tools and resources. Researchers can access computer databases, indexes, and microfilm archives to uncover their ancestors' stories.

Whether you're a seasoned genealogist or just starting your journey, Sammy Brown Library provides a welcoming environment to explore your roots.

Panola County presents a rich and colorful history housed in museums

Panola County's history is richly preserved in its museums. These institutions offer a glimpse into the region's past through exhibits and artifacts.

Southside Museum, located in the historic former jail, showcases local history with exhibits that tell the story of the county and its people. Visitors can learn about the county's military history, local legends, and events that shaped the community.

Panola County Historical Museum, housed in a restored courthouse building, features exhibits on the county's history, including its early settlers, Civil War era, and the development of the county's industries. Visitors can also learn about the history of the courthouse itself.

The Tex Ritter Museum, dedicated to the country music legend, features exhibits on Ritter's life and career, as well as memorabilia related to his music and performances.

These museums provide a valuable resource for understanding the history and culture of Panola County.
Tex Ritter Museum offers insight into talented son of Panola County

Born in Panola County, America's most beloved singing cowboy, would, in his lifetime, gain fame and recognition few others did before or since. Today, the life and times of Tex Ritter can be relived by visiting the museum honoring him in Carthage. Each room of the second floor in the historic Hasbrouk-Clubb-Potters House is dedicated to a period in Ritter's life. More than 500 visit the museum on an annual basis.

Born in the Marvin Community in 1907, Ritter attended Carthage High School and the University of Texas at Austin where he became interested in cowboy ballads through the influence of J. Frank Dobie and John Loock. Ritter went on to land parts on Broadway and worked as a radio star on shows like The Lone Ranger, Tex Ritter's Campfire and Death Valley Days. He soon would begin appearing on the big screen and made motion pictures for industry giants like RKO Radio Pictures, Columbia Pictures, and Universal Pictures.

In addition, Ritter won a bevy of awards for his contributions to country-western music. The accomplishments of Ritter's life are elegantly outsized in the Ritter museum through collections of memorabilia and keepsakes treasured by Ritter, his family and friends.

The award-winning museum is open weekdays during business hours. For more information, call 693-6534.
