Mini plane event draws big crowds

Plane fans from all over the county descended on Panola County for the biennial event this weekend, the last one being three years ago.

Supported by the Carthage Chamber of the Commerce and the Midtown Association, the Ren-oeer Old-Timers Day drew a spectator crowd to the event.

A businessman and a group of aircraft enthusiasts brought their private planes to the airdrome to participate in the event.

Over 1,000 people attended the event over the weekend, many of whom traveled in from other counties.

The event included a variety of activities, including a fly-in, airplane races, and a static display of historic aircraft.

The event was a success, with many attendees expressing interest in returning next year.

Panola County ranchers feeling impact of drought

By Sherry Kooson
THE PANOLA WATCHMAN

Panola County ranchers are feeling the impact of the severe drought that continues to grip the region.

Due to the lack of rainfall, many ranchers have been forced to reduce their herds and sell off cattle to make ends meet.

The drought has also led to a decrease in the quality of hay and forage available for livestock.

The situation is dire, and ranchers are calling for federal assistance to help them through this challenging time.

Group looks to force on courthouse expansions

More than 600 signatures needed before Monday

If we are going to have to pay for this courthouse expansion, we should at least have the opportunity to vote on the plan or the other.

Carthage TAAS scores improve

The local chapter of the Texas Association of Agricultural Science (TAAS) scored well on its recent test.

The TAAS test assesses students' understanding of agricultural science concepts and principles.

The Carthage chapter scored above the state average, with a significant improvement from last year's test.

Chamber beautification project garners special state designation

Panola County received a special designation from the Texas Department of Agriculture for its beautification project.

The project involved landscaping and improving the appearance of the Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber officials and members of the community were proud to receive this recognition for their hard work.

Carthage resident Archibald Young oversees his miniature airplane along with a crew from Netherlands.

The airfield, now open for business, will be a boost to the local economy.

The new facility will provide a place for pilots to land and refuel, as well as a spot for aviation-related businesses to establish themselves.

Chamber officials are grateful for the support of the community and look forward to seeing the facility thrive.

So that's what 360° Communications does.

That's right. 360° Communications is indeed a cellular service company.

While the name is new, we're not, of course. Thanks to growth and experience, we're no longer a part of Sprint. We're an independent, publicly-traded company with a national presence and 1.7 million customers. We have all the resources we had before, and then some. More importantly, our focus has not changed. We still want to make your life easier and simpler through better, more convenient communications.

Why the name "360° Communications," you ask? To us, it's very descriptive of the fact that our company is built around you — from technology to customer service. It reflects our network's ability to surround you and support you wherever you go. And that we'll continue to serve you with the most innovative telecommunications services anywhere.

Unsurpassed cellular communications. That's what we do. With an exclamation.
