Commissions agree to $100,000 loan for hospital

Pocahontas County Commissioners followed the recommendation of County Hospital Manager George Mason and approved a $200,000, 20-year, 13.775 percent loan to defray capital costs of the facility.

The measure was approved unanimously after County Judge Lloyd Link later made the motion that was seconded by County Commissioner Jim West.

Although the hospital owns nearly $400,000 in total outstanding bills, the facility's financial consultant stated that it would pay off all of the bills they considered realistic.

Led by Pocahontas County Commissioner Chairman Thomas Ray Allen, the recommendation continued praising the in-house effort and bringing the total cost to $277,797.77 from the county's own source including hospital costs and counts.

Said to have received the staff's endorsement, the loan will be paid in 20 years.

The total cost of the hospital's capital improvements is $1,000,000.

Lions Club Show set for Friday

After much planning and preparations, Cartage Lions Club planned and organized the show for the 29th annual Lions Club Fair on Friday.

In addition, a 100,000 loan fee has been approved to help defray hospital costs.

Lions Club members and the community will cast an eye on the various exhibits, including sheep, cattle, hogs, goats, chickens, and more during the fair.

As in past years, the 50th annual Lions Club Fair will feature a variety of exhibits, with each class judged on a specific criteria.

Railroad commission to visit county Thursday

The Railroad Commission will visit the county Thursday to conduct a hearing on the proposed construction of a new railroad.

The commission will hear testimony from both proponents and opponents of the proposed railroad project.

The commission's decision will have a significant impact on the county's economy and could result in increased employment and economic growth.
CHS instructor shares details of unusual hobby

The story of a group of students, led by Cindy Jones, is one of determination and creativity. Jones, a CHS instructor, has been working with a team of students to develop an unusual hobby that they believe will not only engage the students but also benefit the community.

The hobby began when Jones and her team of students decided to create a unique project that would not only involve the students but also involve the community. They came up with an idea to create a community garden that would benefit the local community.

The team started working on the project in the fall of 2022, and they have been doing work on it ever since. The students have been working on the project during their free time, and they are now looking to the future of the garden.

Jones is looking forward to seeing the garden grow and hoping that it will become a community hub for the local residents.

"I am very excited about the garden," Jones said. "I hope to see it become a place where people can come together and enjoy the outdoors."
